

A LICENSE FOR CITIES OF 100,000

Proposed by Anti-Saloon League to Constitutional Convention

ABSOLUTE PROHIBITION

Throughout Remainder of State—
High Cost of Living Also Receives Attention

Columbus, Jan. 25.—The constitutional convention today received the proposal of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league relative to the liquor traffic in this state. It provides for a license of cities of 100,000 population or more and absolutely prohibition throughout the remainder of the state.

Two such proposals were introduced, one by J. W. Winn of Defiance and the other by Alexander Dunn of Clermont county. The Winn proposition carries a restriction that the license should be limited to one saloon for every 2,000 population in the larger cities. The Dunn proposal gave the power of regulation of license limitation in the larger cities to the legislature. As an alternative proposal the Winn proposition proposed that the general assembly may by law license the prohibition, or restriction or sale of intoxicants within the limit that no more than one license may be granted to a 2,000 population in a municipality or township.

The convention had the problem of the high cost of living presented before it in a proposal by Delegate Brown of Highland county which prohibited the taxing of licensing or other wise restricting dealers selling food stuffs. Brown said the high cost of living was due to the license fixed by the municipalities.

Two proposals relative to regulating strikes were introduced by Davis of Cuyahoga county. One of these prohibits the importation of strike breakers and the other prohibits the commanding of public corporations with police power.

Waybrecht of Stark county submitted a proposal for good roads which fixes the bond limit at $50,000,000, but unlike other proposals for good roads introduced this one provides that 1-1/2 per cent of the cost of highways contracts should be borne by the county. President Taft today accepted the invitation of the convention to speak before it on "Constitution Fixing." The action fixed the time for a next Wednesday at 11:30. This was the first hour that had been assigned to Governor Harmon, but the latter postponed his address until Tuesday, February 6.

Walter Brown of Lucas county presented a resolution today which provides for an invitation to Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey to speak before the convention.

Columbus, Jan. 25.—All urging that the activity of Ohio cities had been paralyzed by the restraint placed upon them by the legislature, Mayor Brown of Toledo, Mayor Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, and Henry T. Hunt of Cincinnati addressed the constitutional convention during the noon hour, pleading for a greater measure of home rule.

"We are so limited that we are absolutely at the mercy of the interests in our city—interests that we cannot even bargain with successfully declared Mayor Whitlock. He added that it was a wonder Ohio cities were successful at all. Mr. Baker declared that with home rule in operation the worst men who might be put into office would be harmless, but good men were so bound by the present situation they could work but little benefit. Mayor Hunt pleaded that cities be empowered to deal with the great corporations. He maintained that the "factories and tenements turned out daily paupers, tuberculosis victims and criminals."

That the constitutional convention is not yet ready to declare that it wants to write an entirely new constitution to be submitted to the electors of the state or merely submit amendments was demonstrated yesterday in emphatic manner when the convention tabled, 86 to 24, Delegate Okey's resolution "that the labors of the convention."

YOUNGSTOWN AFTER CAMPAIGN OPENING

Washington, Jan. 25.—When President Taft reaches Cleveland next Monday on a three-day swing through Ohio, he will be met by a committee of 70 citizens of Youngstown, who want the campaign of 1912 to open in that city. Announcement by White House officials today was that President Taft will not decide the matter until he has met the committee.

NEWARK ATTORNEYS WIN OUT OVER CORPORATION LAWYERS IN PULLMAN DAMAGE CASE

The case of the Pullman company against ex-Sheriff Wm. Linke, Col. M. M. Gillett and Attorney F. M. Black of this city, came to an ending Thursday in the Federal court of Columbus by failure of the jury to agree on any verdict against the defendants.

The jury was charged by Judge Sater at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and was in continuous session from that time to 11 o'clock Thursday morning.

After the jury was discharged it was learned that they were unanimous in finding that there was no conspiracy shown against the defendants as charged by the Pullman company in their petition, and although the Judge charged the jury that they could find a verdict against any one of the defendants for the alleged unlawful conversion of the car "Eufaula," which was levied upon by the sheriff on November 20, 1909, on process issued by the Common Pleas court of this county in the attachment suit which Colonel Gillett brought against the company to recover the value of a suit of clothes and an overcoat which was stolen from a sleeping car while Colonel Gillett was a passenger from Buffalo to Columbus in 1908, yet the jury was unable to agree on a verdict against any of the defendants.

The result of this disagreement is that the case will have to be tried again at the June term of the Federal court unless the Pullman company sees fit to dismiss the case or the matter is adjusted between the parties.

This is a great victory for the defendants and the attorneys who so ably represented them, Messrs Kibler & Kibler and Fitzgibbon & Montgomery, and they are receiving the congratulations of their brother members of the bar and their friends in general over the result.

The Pullman company was represented by Emmet Tompkins of Columbus, Squire, Saunderson & Dempsey of Cleveland and Wilcoxan of Chicago.

DELEGATES TO MUNICIPAL LEAGUE BELIEVE CITIES SHOULD FRAME THEIR OWN CHARTERS

Columbus, Jan. 25.—At a conference between the representatives of more than 50 Ohio cities and municipalities here today, resolutions were adopted and will be presented to the constitutional convention in session here, in hope that the convention will grant self-government to all Ohio cities. The resolution adopted provides that any city or village may adopt a charter for its government and exercise all the powers of self-government, although subject to and in direct control by the state.

Columbus, Jan. 25.—The second day's session of the Conference of Ohio Cities, attended by representatives of 50 Ohio municipalities, convened at a local hotel this morning to take the final steps in the formation of a league of Ohio cities and the hearing of the reports of the various committees appointed yesterday. A paper on uniform accounting by cities, by Joseph Tracy, supervisor of the municipal accounting of the state bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, was read, following which the report of the committee on organization, recommendations and resolutions were to have been heard and the closing business of the conference transacted. No evidence of the friction yesterday between Mayor Baker of Cleveland and Mayor Hunt of Cincinnati was evident when the convention convened today, both factions apparently having settled the dispute.

Columbus, O., Jan. 25.—Differences and debates between Cleveland and Cincinnati delegates as to the recommendations to the constitutional convention to be made by the Ohio Municipal League, now in process of organization here, led to delay last evening in adoption of recommendation. The organization, however, expressed its belief that "the only effective and permanent relief for our cities from the evils of legislative interference is to be found in the adoption of the principle of municipal home rule," with authority to frame their own charters."

Cleveland and Cincinnati men could not agree as to the provisions which should be recommended, though both favor home rule. The Cleveland men, led by Prof. A. R. Hatton, of Western Reserve University, would have constitutional provisions defining the powers of the city, while the Cincinnati men, led by A. Julian Frelberg, would make it incumbent on the legislature to pass suitable acts, prescribing the manner of framing local self government charters.

Mayor Henry T. Hunt of Cincinnati suggested a constitutional provision, whereby the supreme court could be compelled to pass upon the validity of any proposed city charter, before it should be attempted to put it into operation.

Professor Hatton submitted a draft of a constitutional article, providing the city council or a definite percentage of the electorate might submit the question as to whether a municipality wanted a new charter. If the municipality so decided, it would elect a charter commission of 15 whose work should be submitted for ratification. He proposed to give cities control over schools, the power to own and operate any public utility—principally, he explained, as a bargaining power—while reserving to the state control over tax levy and debt limitation, except that incurred in the purchase of utilities. He also would provide that the general assembly might pass special city acts, subject to referendum of the people of the municipality affected.

City Solicitor Jenkins of Youngstown declared the principal thing needed was a change in the constitution whereby the city would be preserved to have all powers, unless reserved by the state as against the present rule, whereby the city has only the powers expressly given. The proposition generally was indorsed.

"Cities have been treated as artificialities," said Mayor Whitlock, "and from that method of treatment, have arisen many of the evils of city government. The city is an elementary thing, as elemental as a bee hive. To tell the history of civilization is to tell the history of the city."

He declared cities should be free to work out their own destinies and not be mere wards of state legislatures.

"I regard the freedom of the city as necessary to the salvation of the nation," said Mayor Baker of Cleveland. He enlarged on the special problems confronting the cities and declared the greatest evil to the city was its rule by an alien power.

One of the propositions that will be presented in connection with the league of municipalities is a bureau of information for cities showing costs of service of various kinds in the different cities with a view to promoting efficient methods and exchange of knowledge to promote municipal efficiency.

MAKES FAVORABLE REPORT.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The Democratic iron and steel tariff revision was favorably reported to the house today by Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee. The Republican members of the committee were given the right to file an adverse report.

POLITICIAN SENTENCED TO PRISON

Republican Boss of Atlantic City Convicted of Fraud Draws One Year

CLERGYMEN INTERESTED

And With Many Others Petition for Clemency—Prosecution
Directed by Gov. Wilson.

May's Landing, N. J., Jan. 25.—Louis Kuehnle, Republican leader of Atlantic City, who was recently convicted of unlawfully participating in the awarding of a contract to a company in which he was interested while he was a member of Atlantic City water commission, was sentenced yesterday afternoon to one year's imprisonment at hard labor and to pay a fine of $1,000. Kuehnle was released on bail pending an appeal for a new trial. The sentence was pronounced by Supreme Court Justice Kalisch, who was sent here by Governor Wilson, who was behind the prosecution.

Thomas McDevitt and George Amole convicted of violating election laws in Atlantic City, were sentenced to six months and three months in jail, respectively, and to pay the cost of prosecution.

The freshers of Atlantic County, John Answorth, Harry May and Frank Enderlin, who were convicted of accepting money for granting road contracts were given one year each in the penitentiary but the justice eliminated the hard labor provision in the sentence.

Nothing more sensational has occurred in Atlantic City for many years. Because of the personality of Commodore Kuehnle, as he is familiarly known, every citizen has taken an interest one way or another in his case. Clergymen and citizens of all degrees urged on by Kuehnle's political followers, have been active in circulating petitions seeking clemency, and as a result of these efforts it was hoped that he would be let off with a fine.

Mr. Kuehnle is reputed to be a millionaire and for years has held undisputed political sway as the Republican boss of Atlantic City and county. He is the president of one of the largest banks in the city and director in and heavy stockholder in several others.

DABRO IS BOUND OVER; $1,000 BOND REQUIRED

Today Dabro, the Roumanian who is being held on a charge of shooting John Chirilo, a fellow countryman, Monday night, was arraigned before Mayor Swartz Thursday morning and formally charged with shooting with intent to kill Chirilo. Dabro was bound over to the common pleas court and Mayor Swartz fixed his bond at $1,000. He was unable to give bond and was transferred to the county jail, where he was placed in the custody of the sheriff.

Chirilo is still alive at the Sanatorium and the statement was made today that he was holding his own nicely. "In fact," said a hospital attendant, "he is doing better than we expected. He may get well and he may die; we can not say what the outcome will be."

WHAT IS IT?

OH! I'M ALL
SUNBURNED

GOV. HADLEY OF MISSOURI COMES OUT FOR ROOSEVELT; TAFT LEADERS STAGGERED

Cleveland, O., Jan. 25.—President Taft and his closest political advisers were staggered by word from Missouri that Governor Hadley had forsaken the administration and declared for Theodore Roosevelt. The White House refused to believe the reports until they were verified.

The action of Gov. Hadley was totally unexpected. It was as much of a surprise to the insurgent Republicans as it was to the administration. Only one month ago Gov. Hadley spent three days in Washington and as in frequent consultation with President Taft. As a result of these conferences Gov. Hadley issued a formal statement in which he declared for the renomination of the president and said the Missouri vote in the national convention would be cast for Taft.

Up to the time of the Hadley visit there had been some apprehension over the Missouri situation among the managers of the Taft campaign. The Missouri governor was received with wide open arms. The day after his departure an inspired story was sent from White House sources that the administration looked with favor upon the suggestion of Gov. Hadley as the vice presidential candidate. Since that time there have been frequent references to Hadley as the Taft running mate in the approaching campaign.

The declaration of Gov. Hadley for Col. Roosevelt as the political expert here size it up, means that the 36 national convention votes of Missouri will be cast for the former president. Of more importance, perhaps, is the belief entertained in Washington that the Roosevelt wave has reached such proportions that the Taft administration will be swamped unless there is some heroic action on the part of the White House immediately.

Along with the word that Gov. Hadley had flipped to Roosevelt, information came to Washington that Gov. Snibbs of Kansas has sent word to the former president asking him to make an immediate statement as to his position. As Washington is inclined to interpret the message, it was inspired and now political Washington is waiting and expecting Roosevelt to break his silence. It is expected here that the former president will say that, while he is not a candidate, he will accept the nomination if it comes his way, believing he would not be justified in rejecting the commission again to lead his party in a great national contest.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR AND YOUNG BRIDE SAIL AWAY AND MAY NEVER RETURN TO AMERICA

New York, Jan. 25.—Col. John Jacob Astor is thoroughly disgusted with New York society, the institution which his forebears founded and of which he has been an acknowledged leader until this winter. Instead of staying in New York to participate in one of its most brilliant seasons, he sailed away yesterday with his young wife for an extended trip through Egypt, including a month's trip up the Nile.

Col. Astor had just refused to discuss the Connaughts or anything else pertaining to New York when a belated interviewer found him alone near his suite on the sun deck and asked him to tell what he thought of New York society. The colonel, who is a party shot at whatever with which he had had some mysterious falling out, replied warmly:

"My boy, don't ask me what I think of New York society, because it would pain me to tell you my exact feelings. I am thoroughly disgusted with it, at any rate. In fact, it is rotten, very rotten! I don't care what New York society is doing, what it has done or what it is going to do."

I am disgusted with it. I am going to Egypt and I may never return."

Thus society need no longer wonder why Colonel Astor recently withdrew invitations to his annual dinner dance in his New York mansion, which has been the stellar event in former seasons, and on the same day announced that he and Mrs. Astor would spend the winter in Egypt. Society, it was whispered at that time, had snubbed—ever so delicately, but a snub, nevertheless—the young Mrs. Astor, and that there was something of vengeance in Mr. Astor's sudden change of plans.

Mrs. Astor was the picture of health and Col. Astor walked up the gangplank as sprightly as a youth.

Col. and Mrs. Astor plan to reach Paris by way of Cherbourg on January 31. They will leave Paris on a private car Feb. 3 and arrive at Nice the next morning. After spending some little time in the Mediterranean, where they will arrive Feb. 8, they will cruise up the Nile as far as the second cataract on a Nile boat, which has been chartered for a month.

JOHNSON TAKES POLICE CHIEF WILD AUTO RIDE

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 25.—The wild est automobile ride perhaps ever witnessed in any American city took place here late yesterday afternoon. Jack Johnson, the black champion, was at the wheel of his machine and Chief of Police McVeeny was the lone passenger. Johnson drove the officer from Central police station to the Stock Yards station in record breaking time.

He left in his wake hundreds of scared pedestrians, angry teamsters and street car conductors. No one perhaps was madder than Johnson's passenger, Chief McVeeny.

"I ought to have killed the black scoundrel," said the chief last night. "I ordered him to stop a hundred times, but he would not do it. I thought he would kill some one every minute. I was too busy holding on for my life to do much but hold on to him. The black rascal only grinned and put on more juice. I believe he made it from Central police station to the stockyards at the rate of 100 miles an hour."

Johnson, describing the trip, said: "I went to the chief's office to ask him for a permit to do a little boxing on the West Side. He denied me this, and said: 'I've got to be at the Stock Yards station in two minutes.'"

"I'll take you right there. I've got my machine right outside and I knew I had him right where I wanted him. When I got in I just threw him wide open and let her rip. Then he couldn't do nothing but yell. The chief he yelled: 'I'll shoot you, you black son of a gun!' I yelled, 'Go on and shoot!' This is the first chance I ever had to drive as fast as I pleased in a big city and I certainly cut her loose."

boss. He was told a boxing permit such as he asked for was in violation of the state law and could not be granted.

The champion met Jack Curley, manager of Flynn, who arrived in Chicago yesterday, and it was decided to determine on the stakeholder for the Flynn-Johnson match to day. It may be that a local bank will be asked to take the forfeit when they are put up Feb. 16, Johnson and Curley will meet today to finish preliminary preparations for the match, and immediately after Curley will hike to Salt Lake to get in touch with his backers and to get the cash for the forfeit.

Curley stated that the Jarbridge, Nev., men who have offered $100,000 for the match were insistent, and that they were furnishing data that business was meant. He asserts that he will make a trip to the little mining camp while he is west, and then will clinch the match, provided the men there have the wherewith that they are boasting of.

NAVIGATION IS RESUMED ON OHIO RIVER

Gallipolis, Jan. 25.—With the resumption of navigation on the Ohio today, more than one million bushels of Kanawha and Pittsburgh coal bound for Cincinnati and Louisville has been liberated from the ice jam near here and permitted to resume its journey. This removes all fear of a coal famine in those two cities.

EDITOR SULLIVAN IS OUT FOR SECRETARY OF STATE

Columbus, O., Jan. 25.—John Sullivan, former state printer and editor of the East Liverpool Evening Review, last night made formal announcement of his candidacy for secretary of state, subject to the decision of the Republican state convention. In announcing his candidacy, Sullivan declared in favor of the direct primary system of selecting state officials.

PRESIDENT WILL GREET CONNAUGHT

English Duke Expected in Nation's Capital
This Afternoon

THE OFFICIAL PROGRAM

Announced by White House for Reception of King George's Uncle.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—Arrangements for the reception this evening of the Duke of Connaught were completed by the White House and the State Department last night. The uncle of one king and brother of another will be received as simply as possible consistent with etiquette.

The Duchess and the Princess Patricia will not visit Washington at all according to official advice and the Duke will go through the program arranged for his reception unsupported except for the British ambassador, James Bryce, the staff of the British embassy and his personal aid, Colonel Lowther.

Altogether his stay in the capital will be brief, and during most of his six or seven hours in Washington he will be on home territory, within the acre or two covered by the British embassy. He will arrive in Washington at 4:20 this afternoon. Major A. W. Butt, personal aid of President Taft, will meet him at the Union Station, and with the British ambassador and the embassy staff, will form his escort to the embassy.

White House automobiles will convey the Duke from the station to the embassy. At 5 o'clock the Duke is expected to reach the White House. He will be whirled away from the embassy in a White House motor, accompanied by a squadron of cavalry. The cavalry will form an escort of honor to the portico of the Executive Mansion, and will deploy on the driveway in front while he enters to be received. Just in front of the porte cochere the Fifteenth Cavalry Band will be stationed, and as the royal visitor enters it will play "God Save the King."

The Duke will be received by President Taft in much the same way as new Ambassadors are received. As he enters the Executive Mansion he will be met by the military and naval aids of the president and escorted to the Green room and then taken to the Blue room with the British ambassador and Third Assistant Secretary of State Chandler Hale. He will be presented formally to President Taft by the British ambassador.

Following this Mrs. Taft will serve tea for the Duke and the Ambassador in the Red Room. Members of the Cabinet and their wives have been invited to be present.

The Duke will leave the White House after this informal reception and the band outside will play the "Star Spangled Banner."

The squadron of cavalry will escort him back to the British embassy and shortly after he has stopped on British territory again the President accompanied by Major Butt, will return the "call."

So far as the government is concerned this will conclude the Duke's visit to Washington. Unofficially it is known that afterward the Duke will be the guest at a dinner of the British ambassador, and it is understood that he will hold a reception for diplomats and government officials.

BIG ELEVATOR WRECKED.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—Fire which followed a terrible explosion today wrecked the elevator of the Acme Company here. The loss is $200,000. The elevator contained much grain and the detonation was heard several miles. There were reports that a number of the employees had been killed, but no bodies have been found.

LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS ASK FOR INCREASE

New York, Jan. 25.—Locomotive engineers on all railroads in the eastern territory have made demands for a general increase in wages ranging from 15 to 25 per cent. The demand involves all railroads east of Chicago and north of the Norfolk and Western and the Ohio river. Railroad men who have discussed the new demand of engineers believe the time to be inopportune for a move of this kind and believe that the railroads will not grant the demand.

TASTE, SMELL AND HEARING GONE

Destroyed by Catarrh Can Be Quickly Restored By Using Ely's Cream Balm.

The thousands who suffer the miseries of colds and catarrh and claim they have never found a cure can get instant relief by simply anointing the nostrils with Ely's Cream Balm.

Unlike internal mixtures which upset the stomach or clog the system, this cleansing, healing, antiseptic balm instantly reaches the seat of the trouble, stops the nasty discharge, clears the nose, head and throat, and brings back the sense of taste, smell and hearing. More than this, it strengthens the weakened and diseased tissues, thus protecting you against a return of the trouble. This remedy will cure a cold in a day, and prevent its becoming chronic or resulting in catarrh.

Nasal catarrh is an inflammation of the membrane lining the air passages, and cannot be reached by mixtures taken into the stomach, nor can it be cured by snuffs and powders which only cause additional irritation. Don't waste time on them. Get a 50 cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist, and after using it for a day you will wish you had tried it sooner.

Mothers should give the children Ely's Cream Balm for colds and croup. It is perfectly harmless, and pleasant to take.

ADVANTAGE IS NOT BEING TAKEN BY GIRLS

Leap year is not working as advertised. The girls are not popping the question, though all sorts of inducements are offered to get them to break over their reserve. It isn't natural up in Escanaba, Mich they are seeking diligently for a self-constituted bride. A wedding without a marriage fee, a box gratis at the theatre, free rent of a cozy cottage for a month, a wedding feast, a bin of coal and a handsome suit of bedroom furniture. All these offers are made to the fair damsel who proposes to and captures a bridegroom. And then, to cap the climax, a young lawyer ambles up and offers to donate his services in obtaining a divorce, if the bride becomes dissatisfied with her bargain.

In the face of all these enticements, no bride has yet appeared, which indicates a fine state of common sense among the maidens of Licanaba. They doubtless go on the idea that a man who is so cowardly as not to propose isn't worth having. But after all, the more the question is no ordeal—more than the strawberry turning red under the mild blue skies.

WATKINS NAMES JACK GRIM MANAGER OF LOCAL CLUB

Owner W. H. Watkins of the Newark, Ohio State League club, announced at Indianapolis last night that Jack Grim would be the manager of the Newark club for the present season.

The new manager is a veteran ball player and was for years a star catcher in the National league. He is an old head in the game and will prove a valuable asset to the local club in the training of young pitchers and green players.

Watkins also announced that he would send a number of his Indianapolis players to Newark for more seasoning under the veteran manager.

Manager Grimm began his baseball career in 1887, when he signed with the Danville club of the old Interstate League. He continued actively in baseball up to 1904, when he managed the Marion, Ind., club of the Central league. Last season he coached the De Pauw university ball team.

He is now in Indianapolis at the Watkins baseball headquarters, where he is signing players for the Newark club.

CONVENTION

tion be confined to the formulation of amendments to the existing constitution and the submission thereof, separately, to the electors for adoption or rejection.

While the vote on the motion, which was made by Delegate Walter F. Brown of Lucas, was a disappointing one to those in the convention favoring the purpose, Delegate Hoskins insisted after the vote, that the convention would be ready in two weeks to adopt a resolution of a similar nature.

That a working majority of the committee on liquor traffic is in favor of licensing the saloons was shown by the debate in the committee last evening on the subject of committee hearings. Following a controversy, the committee decided on a public hearing at 2:30 this afternoon. Another hearing will be held next Thursday and another at a time to be announced at the second hearing, and no more.

Provision for three hearings was made by Professor Knight of Franklin, who had incorporated as part of the report of a subcommittee, named by the committee. It was composed of Delegates Roehm of Montgomery, Shaffer of Butler and Fox of Mercer. The committee had recommended one hearing.

In presenting the report Mr. Roehm protested against extended hearings and declared: "The position of every man on this committee is fixed now and will not be changed by agreement. I am opposed to hearings where the public is permitted to heckle the speakers so that the speakers may address them, and hisses, cat calls, applause and cheers may be evoked."

Mr. Kilpatrick of Trumbull, an ardent dry, charged the wets were trying to rush the discussion of the subject to the advantage of license advocates. "I warn you," said he, "not to attempt to railroad this thing through or you will rue it." He proposed a series of hearings, but the committee refused to accept his proposition.

Judge E. B. King of Erie, regarded as the leader of the wet advocates, said the people generally advocated early settlement of the license proposition and denied any intention to railroad. He added the minority members might make such report as they saw fit.

"The main question," said Judge King, "is shall the license proposition be submitted to a vote of the people? I think this committee is settled in its position on the question. All the orators in the country cannot change our vote."

Professor Knight was inclined to disagree with him and said many people are still open to conviction. Mr. Elson of Athens wanted the deliberation while Mr. Winn of Deane predicted a minority report, declaring he would not walk across the room to hear the question debated.

President Bigelow said today's hearing was for the purpose of giving Percy Andeare of Cincinnati, head of the Liberal League, a chance to be heard while he is in Columbus. He suggested W. B. Wheeler could be called in. Mr. Stephens of Tuscarawas denied the need of hearings and suggested debate on the floor of the convention.

The short ballot committee will hold a public meeting at 7:30 next Wednesday night, while the committee on banks and banking announced a hearing on the question of the guarantee of bank deposits at 9:30 Wednesday morning.

ZANESVILLE CANNOT RAISE BALL FUNDS

Zanesville, Jan. 25.—The directors of the baseball club are beginning to feel a trifle discouraged in their request for funds with which to put the Athletics through the 1912 Central league season. The fans are not coming to the front in the manner anticipated.

As the time for the preparation of the club grows shorter the need of greater haste is made apparent.

After four years of Central League baseball the local fans are liable to find themselves lacking baseball of any kind. And what that means, the fans EVANS IN KITTY LEAGUE?

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 25.—There will be another meeting of the directors of the Kitty Baseball League in a short time to dispose of the franchise of the Harrisburg (Ill.) team, which was offered to Evansville at a meeting held here Sunday. In the event that Evansville turns down the offer, the franchise will then be offered to Owensboro, Ky. Directors of the league say that if Evansville gets into the league and if East St. Louis, Ill., takes the place of Fulton, Ky., as is hoped, then the league will be able to play Class C ball instead of Class D ball.

The fans here have been laboring under a delusion as to the actual amount of money collected so far by the soliciting committees. The amount at the end of Wednesday's work totaled but $2510—half of the required amount.

PURCHASED BY SPRINGFIELD.
Springfield, O., Jan. 25.—President W. H. Watkins of the Reapers announces that he has purchased Pitcher Smith, a left-hander, and Outfielder Nicholson from the Pirates. Both men were drafted by Pittsburgh last fall.

YOUR GRAY HAIRS WILL QUICKLY VANISH

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs, which unfortunately are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hairs, however, are not always an indication of advancing age, for many people have gray hairs quite early in life. Of course, it is unnatural, and indicates that there is something wrong with the individual, and that Nature needs assistance in correcting the trouble. The same is true of hair that is constantly falling out and becoming thinner every day. If everything is right with Nature, the hair, even in comparatively elderly people, should be long, thick and glossy, without even a streak of gray.

The ideal assistant to Nature in restoring and preserving the hair is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a clean and wholesome dressing for daily use. It not only removes dandruff, but strengthens weak, thin and falling hair and promotes its growth. A few applications will restore faded or gray hair to its natural color.

Get a bottle today, and let it do for you what it has done for thousands of others.

CHAPTER XV.

Life at the office went on much the way it had always gone.

In spite of their high resolve, there was a very measurable degree of the furtive in their meetings. In essence, these meetings were stolen. They did not ride out brazenly together in the face of the world. On the contrary, they met always unobserved, she riding across the many-gated backroad from Berkeley to meet him halfway. Nor did they ride on any save unfrequented roads, preferring to cross the second range of hills and travel among a church-going farmer folk who would scarcely have recognized even Daylight from his newspaper photographs. He found Dede a good horsewoman—good not merely in riding, but in endurance. There were days when they covered sixty, seventy, and even eighty miles; nor did Dede ever claim any day too long, nor another strong recommendation to daylight—did the hardest day ever see the slightest change of the chestnut sorrel's back. "A sure enough hummer," was Daylight's stereotyped but ever enthusiastic verdict to himself.

His lifelong fear of woman had originated out of nonunderstanding and had also prevented him from reaching any understanding. Dede on horseback, Dede gathering poppies, on a summer hillside, Dede taking down dictation in her swift shorthand strokes—all this was comprehensible to him. But he did not know the Dede who so quickly changed from mood to mood; the Dede who refused steadfastly to ride with him and then suddenly consented, the Dede in whose eyes the golden glow forever waxed and waned and whispered hints and messages that were not for his ears. In all such things he saw the glimmering profundities of sex; acknowledged their lure, and accepted them as incomprehensible.

But through it all ran the golden thread of love. At first he had been content just to ride with Dede and to be on comradely terms with her; but the desire, and the need for her increased. The more he knew of her, the higher was his appraisal. Had she been reserved and haughty with him, or been merely a giggling, simpering creature of a woman, it would have been different. Instead, she amazed him with her simplicity and wholesomeness, with her great store of comradeship. The latter was the unexpected. He had never looked into a woman in that way. Woman, the way woman, the happy woman, the necessary wife and mother of the race's offspring—all this had been his expectation; and understanding of woman, "but woman, the comrade and playfellow and joyfellow—this was what Dede had surprised him in. And the more she became worth while, the more ardently his love burned, unconsciously shading his voice, with caresses, and with equal unconsciousness flaring up signal fires in his eyes. "Not was she blind to it, yet, like many women before her, she thought to play with the pretty fire and escape the consequent conflagration."

"Winter will soon be coming on," she said, regretfully, and with provocation, one day, "and then there won't be any more riding."

"But I must see you in the winter just the same," he cried hastily.

She shook her head.

"I've been pretty good," he declared.

"I leave it to you if I haven't. It's been pretty hard, too. I can tell you. You just think it over. Not once have I said a word about love to you, and now you're all the time. That's going some for a man that's used to having his own way. I'm somewhat of a rasher when it comes to traveling. I reckon I'd rush God Almighty if it came to a race over the ice. And yet I didn't rush you. I guess this fact is an indication of how much I do love you. Of course I want you to marry me. Have I said a word about it, though? Nary a chirp, nary a flutter. I've been quiet and good, though I've almost made me sick at times, this keeping quiet. I haven't asked you to marry me. I'm not asking you now. Oh, not but what you satisfy me. I sure know you're the wife for me. But how about myself? Do you know me well enough to know your own mind?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "I don't know," and I ain't going to take chances on it now. You've got to know for sure whether you think you could get along with me or not, and I'm playing a slow conservative game. I ain't going to lose for overlooking my hand."

"This was love-making of a sort beyond Dede's experience. Nor had she ever heard of anything like it."

"So you see," he urged, "just for a square deal we've got to see some more of each other this winter. Most likely your mind ain't made up yet."

"But it is," she interrupted. "I wouldn't dare permit myself to care for you. Happiness, for me, would not lie that way. I like you, Mr. Harnish, and all that, but it can never be more than that."

"It's because you don't like my way of living," he charged, thinking in his own mind of the sensational joy-rides and general profligacy with which the newspapers had credited him—thinking this, and wondering whether or not, in maiden modesty, she would disclaim knowledge of it.

To his surprise, her answer was flat and uncompromising.

"No; I don't."

"I know I've been brash on some of those rides that got into the papers," he began his defence, "and that I've been traveling with a lively crowd."

"I don't mean that," she said, "though I know about it, too, and can't say that I like it. But it is your life in general, your business. There are women in the world who could marry a man like you and be happy, but I couldn't. And the more I cared for such a man, the more unhappy I should be. You see, my unhappiness, in turn, would tend to make him unhappy. I should make a mistake, and he would make an equal mistake, though his would not be so hard on him because he would still have his business."

"Business!" Daylight gasped.

"What's wrong with my business? I play fair and square. There's nothing underhand about it, which can't be said of most businesses, whether of the big corporations or of the cheating, lying, little corner-grocerymen. I play the straight rules of the game, and I don't have to lie or cheat or break my word."

"Don't you see," he went on, "the whole game is a gamble. Everybody gambles in one way or another. The farmer gambles against the weather and the market on his crops. So does the United States Steel Corporation. The business of lots of men is straight robbery of the poor people. But I've never made that my business. You know that. I've always gone after the robbers."

"I missed my point," she admitted.

"Wait a minute."

"And for a space they rode in silence."

"I see it more clearly than I can state it, but it's something like this. There is legitimate work, and there's that which isn't legitimate. The farmer works the soil and produces grain. He's making something that is good for humanity. He actually, in a way, creates something, the grain that will fill the mouths of the hungry."

"And then the railroad and market-tiggers and the rest proceed to rob him of that same grain," Daylight broke in.

"There ain't much difference between playing halfway robber like the railroad, hauling that farmer's wheat to market, and playing all robber and robbing the robbers like I do. And, besides, halfway robbery is too slow a game for me to sit in. You don't win quick enough for me."

"But what do you want to win for?" Dede demanded. "You have millions and millions, already. Why can't you do good with all your money?"

Daylight laughed.

"Doing good with your money! Ain't it funny, to go around with brass knuckles and a big club breaking folks' heads and taking their money away from them until I've got a pile, and then, repenting of my ways, going around and bandaging up the heads the other robbers are breaking? I leave it to you. That's what doing good with money amounts to. Every once in a while some robber turns soft-hearted and takes to driving an ambulance. That's what Carnegie did. He smashed heads in pitched battles at Homestead, regular wholesale head-breaker for a few hundred million, and now he goes around dishing it back to them. Funny? I leave it to you."

He rolled a cigarette and watched her roll curiously, half-amusedly. His replies and harsh generalizations of a harsh school were disconcerting, and she came back to her earlier position.

"I can't argue with you, and you know that. No matter how right a woman is, men have such a way about them—well, what they say sounds most convincing, and yet the woman is still certain they are wrong. But there is one thing, the creative joy; and it's a higher joy than mere gambling. Haven't you ever made things yourself—a log cabin up in the Yukon, or a canoe, or raft, or something? And don't you remember how satisfied you were, how good you felt, while you were doing it and after you had it done?"

While she spoke his memory was busy with the associations she recalled. He saw the deserted flat on the river bank by the Klondike, and he saw the log cabins and warehouses spring up, and all the log structures he had built, and his sawmills working night and day on three shifts.

"Why, dog-gone it, Miss Mason, you're right—in a way. I've built hundreds of houses up there, and I remember I was proud and glad to see them go up. I'm proud now, when I remember them. And there was Ophir—the most God-forsaken moose-pasture of a creek you ever laid eyes on. I made that into the big Ophir. Why, I ran the water in there from the Klondike, eighty miles away. They all said I couldn't, but I did it, and I did it by myself. The dam and the flume cost me four million. But you should have seen that Ophir—power plants, electric lights, and hundreds of men on the pay-roll, working night and day. I guess I do get an inking of what you mean by making a thing. I made Ophir, and she was a hummer."

"I Like You, Mr. Harnish, and That Is All."

"And you won something there that was more than mere money," Dede encouraged. "Now do you know what I would do if I had lots of money and simply had to go on playing at business? Take all the southern and westerly slope of these bare hills, I'd buy them in and plant eucalyptus on them. I'd do it for the joy of doing it anyway, but suppose I had that gambling twist in me which you talk about, why, I'd do it just the same and make money out of the trees. And there's my other point again. Instead of raising the price of coal without adding an ounce of coal to the market supply, I'd be making thousands and thousands of cords of firewood—making something where nothing was before. And everybody who ever crossed on the ferries would look up at these forested hills and be made glad. Who was made glad by your adding four dollars a ton to Rock Wells?"

"It was Daylight's turn to be silent for a time while she waited an answer."

"Would you rather I did things like that?" he asked at last.

"It would be better for the world, and better for you," she answered non-committally.

AVIATOR

Rescues Child From Drowning After It Had Been Carried Down River on Ice Cakes.

Thompsonville, Conn., Jan. 25.—What is believed to be the first rescue from drowning by an aeroplane took place a mile south of this village yesterday afternoon. The circumstances surrounding the rescue are most spectacular.

Dora Pease, a 6-year-old child, residing in a small cottage on the banks of the Connecticut river, crept to the open space in the river below. Seating herself upon two large cakes of ice, the girl began to amuse herself by propelling them along the smooth surface of the frozen river.

Suddenly the ice cutters were aroused by a loud splash and a child's scream, and were horrified to see the child seated on an ice cake, floating rapidly down the river to the Buffalo Falls. An attempt to rescue the child by means of a long rope failed.

The attention of the panic-stricken men was attracted from the child in her perilous position by a whirling above them as Charles S. Jenkins, a shoe-repairer and amateur aviator, swooped down from the Suffolk hills and over the river. The gestures of the ice men attracted his attention to the child.

The child's attention also had been attracted to the aeroplane, which was sweeping down upon her, and kneeling upon the ice raft, she waved her hands and screamed to the aviator.

As the machine passed over the cakes of ice the child made a leap and a wild clutch, grasping a brass support far below the engine and was lifted to the seat by Jenkins and carried to the bank.

FROM "TRUSTY" TO OFFICE.

Columbus, Jan. 25.—Harold C. Abbott, Yale graduate and fraternal man, serving time in the penitentiary for embezzlement, and a "trusty" will be pardoned by Governor Harmon soon and given a job with the state board of administration, for which he has already done considerable engineering work.

The card player isn't a only person who should beware of double dealing.

$200,000 FIRE IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—A five-story brick building, occupied by a wholesale wall paper concern, was wrecked here by fire early today, with a loss of $200,000.

Thinks State Should Inspect All Dairies

Columbus, O., Jan. 25.—It is the opinion of State Dairy and Food Commissioner S. E. Strode that the only way to solve the problem of how to get pure and wholesome milk is through state inspection of all dairies. He will recommend that a law providing for this be passed by the next legislature.

The rules adopted by the city health boards differ, and milk that may be admitted in one city is barred from another. "It is manifest that if milk and cream are unfit for consumption by the people of one city they are unfit for those of any other city," said Commissioner Strode.

"Another serious phase of the question is the possibility at all times of a milk famine in cities that exclude milk and cream in considerable quantities, resulting in discouragement to the dairy industry and further curtailing the supply."

Commissioner Strode said that should the general assembly carry out his recommendations, it would be necessary to increase his force, but that the additional number of inspectors employed would be small compared with the number now required in the same work by the various cities.

Try This Experiment On Your Family

Serve Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH instead of coffee for breakfast without calling anyone's attention to it. Be sure that Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH is made according to directions. Like coffee, you can spoil it. But Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH is just as easy to prepare as coffee. See whether anybody notices the difference—or if your family thinks it is coffee, whether it is better than usual. Many who used to be coffee fiends say they now prefer Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH for its delightful flavor of the finest coffee.

Fitch's Grains of Health

The Coffee Substitute With the Coffee Taste

Here is another interesting experiment. Try Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH into one cup, and the drinker's favorite brand of coffee into another. Trim them exactly alike, and ask the drinker to tell which is which. He may make a good guess, but it will be only a guess.

Smells Like Good Coffee Tastes Like Good Coffee

Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH has been substituted for coffee in many families and confirmed drinkers have not known the change. Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH smells like good coffee—tastes like good coffee, but has not one of coffee's bad qualities. Caffeine, the part of coffee which causes the headaches and nervousness, has been counteracted in Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH. Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH is a simple combination of a special high-grade blend of coffee with herbs, roots and vegetables, which make it a positive health benefit. Unlike the Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH, you want. The more the better. You can serve Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH to the children. It is good for them. No intelligent parent should ever tell you to serve coffee to children.

Recommended by Physicians

You can serve Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH to the sick. We have testimonials from doctors who use Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH and recommend it. Don't think we offer you Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH on its remedial merits alone. It is a substitute for coffee for all coffee drinkers. It has the aroma, it has the taste, it has the revivifying effect. It has all the attractions of the real thing, and it's healthified.

Ask Your Grocer

Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH is sold by all leading grocers. The price is 30 cents the pound. It is ground, ready for use. It is just as easy to prepare as coffee, but it does much more for you. Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH is required as coffee—a teaspoonful to a cup. Therefore it really costs only half as much as good coffee.

If your grocer cannot supply you, write us, mentioning his name, and we will send you a generous sample package of Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH (enough to serve a large family at breakfast) telling you all about Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH. Enclose 6 cents in stamps for postage

OIL INSPECTOR

FINLEY'S WORK

State Oil Inspector William L. Finley has filed his annual report with Governor Harmon. It shows that during the calendar year, January 1st to December 31st, 1911, the department inspected 642,611 barrels of oil, and 881,002 barrels of gasoline, naphtha, etc., a total of 1,523,613 barrels. The gross revenue from these inspections amounted to $107,918.02. The interest on daily balances during the year collected by the inspector was $236.97. The aggregate expenses of the department for the year were $40,824.94, of which $38,995.53 were dispensed as fees and salaries fixed by law. The net receipts of the department for the year were $67,274.41, which sum was turned into the state treasury, being 7,722.69 in excess of the net revenues to the state of the department last year. The gross revenues exceeded those of 1910 by $8,448.83 while the net revenues exceeded those of 1910, by 7,722.68. The fees paid to deputies, fixed by law, for the increased inspections amounting to 115,646 barrels, were $2,143.09. This shows a net saving in such operating expenses of the department as may be controlled by the inspector of $1,416.95 over 1910, and, it will be remembered that by the report for 1910 a similar saving of over $700, was effected for that portion of the year during which the department was administered by Inspector Finley.

Attention is called in the report to a new process used in the manufacture of gasoline which produces a highly volatile liquid which is extremely dangerous. This is known as "casing-head" gasoline or "liquid gas" and is condensed at the mouths of oil wells. It is produced in small quantities by different operators throughout the oil and gas fields, who seem ignorant of the fact that the product should be inspected. But ordinary inspection will not protect the public, and the inspector asks that his department be authorized to devise a bright and attractive stamp which every package of this product must bear before it is offered for sale. An explosion of this substance very seriously burned one of the deputies in the department last November and a bystander was killed outright.

Well, well! Roosevelt dined with the Duke of Connaught, the uncle of King George, on Tuesday. Now, how will those alleged Progressives, who profess to be the only real sympathizers with the common people stand for a man who will dine with a Duke of the royal blood?

FAIR TAXATION.

T. B. Terry, one of the associate editors of The Practical Farmer, which is published in Philadelphia, owns a farm in Northern Ohio, and he is one of the many thousands of farmers who has been benefitted by a reduction in taxes. Mr. Terry was so pleased at the successful termination of Governor Harmon's efforts to lessen the taxes of those farmers and home owners who have been assessed too heavily by forcing interests that had not been paying their just share to contribute their fair portion toward the expense of the government, that he wrote an article entitled "Fair Taxation at Last" for The Practical Farmer.

The first portion of it is devoted to pointing out defects of the old system of assessing property, and telling of the increased assessment so as to get all property on the duplicate at the same basis—true valuation. The closing paragraph of Mr. Terry's article reads:

"And real estate was assessed two or three times as high as formerly. There was some anxiety to find out whether this would result in a heavier burden on farmers, or enough personal property be added to duplicate the matter all right. The result has been better than we even hoped for. We have just paid our taxes. The rate was $5.30 on $1,000. Last year it was $17. The value of our farm was raised about $5,000. But we pay less taxes on it this year than last, owing to the great decrease in the rate. But it is on personal property that the heaviest gain was made. There was no raise in the valuation of that for us. We put in all that was subject to taxation last year, as well as this, of course. And we pay only $5.30 instead of $17. per thousand. So our taxes altogether are not much more than half what they were last year. This because law and justice have been enforced, largely. All honor to the Governor who insisted on its being done, who made pledges before election and kept them. It is a great gain for righteousness. When we people drop parties and vote for upright men, who have a record for doing things for the good of the masses, we can get our wrongs righted. Although a strong Republican in the past, I am proud to say that I voted for Harmon, the man, not the party."

HOME RULE

FOR CITIES

(Ohio State Journal)

There is a meeting of mayors and other city officers and prominent citizens interested in municipal affairs now being held in this city. The representation is large and of an enthusiastic character. Their main purpose is to impress the constitutional convention with their ideas respecting city government, and some of the prominent members are to address that body.

There is an impression that the subjection of city government to legislative control should be materially reduced and the cities be permitted to move forward along the natural lines of evolution. This is a wise purpose, if in thus removing the sovereignty of the state the city is protected against the menace of party bossism and political exploitation. But in these days, the temper of the people is so strongly arrayed against these enemies of good government that the change to home rule will not only be safe but wholesome and progressive.

It is a good sign that these men, engaged in municipal government, should get together and plan for improvement. It is needed badly. The municipal system can stand a liberal reconstruction from top to bottom. As the case stands now, the people are paying for more than they get. The people are willing to pay the taxes but they don't want it all spent on government that they don't control themselves.

Years of Suffering

Catarrh and Blood Disease—
Doctors Failed to Cure.

Miss Mabel F. Dawkins, 1214 Lafayette St., Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "For three years I was troubled with catarrh and blood disease. I tried several doctors and a dozen different remedies, but none of them did me any good. A friend told me of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took two bottles of this medicine and was as well and strong as ever. I feel like a different person and recommend Hood's to any one suffering from catarrh."

Youngstown Vindicator: The hemp industry is said to be declining in Kentucky. Hauging's going out of style, but the cheap cigar ought to do something to stimulate the growing of hemp.

President Farrell told the Congressional committee how the Steel Trust has been exporting all over the world but couldn't hold the home market without help from the high protective tariff.

The Winnipeg chickens whose crops were full of gold-bearing gravel have started a rush of gold-seekers like that which swept into the Klondike, and are regarded with far more respect than the cold-storage tows whose merits have been under active and acrimonious discussion in the country.

THREAT OF REP.

STAND-PATTER SENATOR PENROSE

(Plain Dealer.)

Senator Penrose serves official notice that no tariff legislation will be permitted to get itself on the statute books during the present session of congress. Measures of revision coming from the Democratic house will, he predicts, be killed by the Republican senate. And if they should, through Republican disaffection, pass both houses of congress, they would be vetoed by the president.

The frankness of this statement is amazing, but the greatest significance lies in the Pennsylvania's assumption of knowledge that President Taft would veto any Democratic tariff measure that might come under his consideration. The President, speaking for himself, has given no indication of such intention. He has recommended revision along the lines indicated by tariff board reports, and the Democrats have evidenced no desire to ignore the data thus supplied. But Mr. Penrose, who is chairman of the senate finance committee and who may be expected to use his position to kill all tariff revisions that are killable, is certain that even if such measures get through the senate they will find their executioner at the White House.

Only one interpretation of the Penrose statement seems possible. It must be taken as a threat directed against Mr. Taft. If the President permits Democratic revisions to become law he must not expect the support of machine dominated states, such as Pennsylvania, where the "interests" are the power behind the bosses. The loss of the Pennsylvania delegation alone would be a serious blow to Mr. Taft in the convention, and Mr. Penrose must be supposed to be speaking authoritatively in behalf of the state machine of which he is so important a sprocket.

It was generally supposed that the present session of congress would be a political one, but politics such as Mr. Penrose represents was not expected to come into the open at so early a date.

A Girl's Wild Midnight Ride.

To warn people of a fearful forest fire in the Catskills a young girl rode horseback at midnight and saved many lives. Her deed was glorious but lives are often saved by Dr. King's New Discovery, which might have ended in consumption or pneumonia. "It cured me of a dreadful cough and lung disease," writes W. R. ADMINISTRATION FIRST BLOOD IN BATTLE FOR THE RENOMINATION

Washington, Jan. 27.—Friends of the administration are elated over the fact that they have drawn first blood in the fight for the president's renomination. This they did by electing the delegates from the Fourth district of Oklahoma to the Chicago convention, and having them instructed unequivocally for the president.

The outcome of the convention at Colgate, Okla., is especially gratifying in view of the fact that former President Roosevelt has been regarded as especially strong in that state yet, notwithstanding this fact and the spectacular attempt which was made to stampede the convention for him, the delegates were instructed to vote for President Taft by a four-to-one majority.

There has never been any attempt worthy of the name of the part of the followers of Senator La Follette to accomplish anything for the Wisconsin Senator in Oklahoma, as they regarded the situation as such that no one except Colonel Roosevelt could make any inroads upon the Taft strength there.

Consequently, they have left Oklahoma alone in the hope that the state might be taken away from the president by Roosevelt. The action of the Fourth district convention yesterday has not only had the effect of giving courage to the administration supporters, but also of depressing the spirits of those who are opposing his renomination. They had been led to believe that Taft would have hard sledding in that state.

All the time that these reports were in circulation, Representative Bird S. Maguire of Oklahoma has been telling the president and his advisers that the state was safe for Taft and that there was no cause for worry about it. The result this far is a vindication of his judgment.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa yesterday came out in a statement giving a lukewarm endorsement of the candidacy of his colleague, Senator Cummings, who several days ago announced that he was an aspirant for the Republican nomination.

Senator Kenyon, after lauding the president for the course which he has pursued, especially with regard to trust prosecutions, in which he is particularly interested, having before his election to the senate been the administration's chief trust buster, makes it plain that his only reason for abandoning support of the president at this time is because Senator Cummings is Iowa's favorite son.

Those who understand the situation realize that while Senator Kenyon is still at least in favor of the renomination of the president and believes that it will be accomplished regardless of Iowa's position he is, nevertheless, for reasons of political expediency, in which his own re-election is involved, obliged to give at least passive support to the Cummings boom.

Senator Kenyon, before making his announcement yesterday, had a conference with the president, and there is a thorough understanding between them as to his action. It is generally believed here that if there is no fight made over the Ohio delegation, that after it gives a complimentary vote for Senator Cummings, it will fall in line for the renomination of President Taft. Friends of the administration do not regard the Iowa delegates as unfavorable to the president's renomination, otherwise a contest would be made to obtain them.

Senator Kenyon in his statement says: "I have been earnestly for the renomination of President Taft. My enthusiasm for him was increased as I have observed the attempts of such men as George W. Perkins of Harvester Trust and Steel Trust (name and other gentlemen closely connected with the trusts of this country to destroy him because of his courageous efforts to enforce the Sherman act.

"Had no suitable candidate from my own state been presented I should have continued to advocate his nomination. However, Iowa will now present the name of Senator Cummings as its candidate for the presidency. He is an Iowa son of whom the state may well be proud. I shall cordially support him. As governor of our state for seven years and in his term in the senate, he has exhibited qualities of leadership, statesmanship and fitness for public service that should commend him to the nation.

"I believe that Senator Cummings will grow in strength as a presidential candidate during the months in which his merits will be more fully presented to the people. The Republicans of Iowa united in presenting the name of Senator Allison some years ago as their candidate for president. I trust and believe they will now unite in presenting Senator Cummings."

Republican politicians have been endeavoring to figure out today to reason for the declaration of Governor Hadley of Missouri in favor of the nomination of former President Roosevelt, as he has been regarded as a Taft man. They have reached the conclusion that he is an aspirant for the second place on the ticket and desires to be hooked up with Roosevelt on the ticket in the event that he is nominated.

Roosevelt having carried the state in 1904, it is said that Hadley believes that he can demonstrate to the convention, if it selects the former president, that the feat can be duplicated if he is named as Roosevelt's running mate. They say he would prefer to take his chances with Col. Roosevelt rather than with Taft. Secretary Nagel, of the department of commerce and labor, as well as the Republican members of the state delegation in congress, do not apprehend that the declaration of the governor will prevent the endorsement of the president by the state convention and the instruction of the delegates to vote for Taft.

Among the endorsements of the president received today was a resolution from the Republican committee of Henry county, Indiana, declaring for the renomination of Taft. The board of supervisors of Marquette, Mich., also sent the following poll: Taft, 15; La Follette, 9; Roosevelt, 4; Osborn (governor of Michigan), 1; no choice, 1. Champ Clark will not. Woodrow Wilson Fred Dubois. From one of the Woodrow Wilson presidential bureaus a story has been started that Fred Dubois, former senator from Idaho, who is taking an active interest in the Clark presidential candidacy, spent most of last summer in Washington lobbying against a reduction in the wool tariff.

The speaker would not discuss the matter today, but indicated that he was mightily glad to get all the support he could in his race for the presidency, and was not engaged in the business of driving away supporters.

ROOSEVELT CLUB FORMED AT DAYTON

Dayton, O., Jan. 25.—Dayton progressive Republicans declared last night their fealty to Theodore Roosevelt and took the Taft men and La Follette's supporters by surprise by organizing a club whose purpose is to promote the nomination and election of Roosevelt to the presidency.

Among those who have been most active in crystallizing the sentiment that culminated in the formation of the Roosevelt Club last night are Robert R. Nevin, son of former Congressman R. M. Nevin, and former prosecutor of Montgomery county, and others who have been prominent in the councils of the Republican party in Montgomery county for a number of years.

It is the intention of those behind the local Roosevelt boom, within a short time to open headquarters in this city and employ every means within their command to encourage the Roosevelt sentiment, which they believe has already grown to formidable proportions. The club was launched with the following officers:

President, Attorney Charles Folkert; vice president, Dr. A. O. O'Connor; secretary, R. C. Hahn; committeemen, W. F. Spicer and A. C. Bersi.

INNOCENT PEOPLE HANGED BY LYNCHERS

Hamilton, Ga., Jan. 25.—Inquiry into the lynching here Monday night of four negroes, one of them a mulatto girl, for the alleged murder of Norman Hadley, shows that the mob put at least two innocent persons to death and probably three and there is no convincing evidence that the fourth negro had anything to do with the killing of Hadley.

It is certain that Bertha Hathaway, the mulatto girl, was innocent, and John Cruttschank and Herbert Henson, two of the three men lynched, could easily have established alibis.

Hadley was an unmarried planter and was infatuated with Bertha. He had been warned to keep away from her. He disregarded the warning, however, and Sunday afternoon went to to the girl's home and tried to get her to come out and meet him. He was then shot from ambush.

Henry Anderson, one of the negroes lynched, is said to have wanted to marry the girl and he may have shot the young planter.

The developments have caused great indignation, and a determined effort will be made to ferret out the members of the mob. Bertha Hathaway was only 20 years old and comely.

The bodies of the four negroes were left swinging to the trees, bullet-riddled until late last evening. All the negroes are leaving the county and the farmers are having some trouble to get laborers.

HEART AND HOME TALKS BY BARBARA BOYD

Give Yourself a Helpful Environment.

WHY shouldn't you give yourself all the help there is in the world for you to grow toward the good and the beautiful? For growth toward the good and beautiful means success and happiness. And your environment has a lot to do with this. And you can influence your environment.

We all know that if we plant cantaloupes near squash, the cantaloupes will taste of the squash; that if popcorn is grown too near the field corn, it loses its characteristic quality of popping. And what is true in the vegetable world is true in the inner world of spirit. We gradually and insensibly become like that which we associate with. And it is a strange thing that unless we are an exceptional character, we rarely pull the other fellow up—unless he wants to be pulled up. But we eventually and insensibly slip down. The squash does not partake of the nature of the cantaloupe. The cantaloupe grows like the squash.

And since this seems the law, why not make use of the beneficent side of it, and put ourselves in touch with those associations that will lift us up? Why not deliberately give ourselves all the help possible upward to better things?

Choose books, choose music, choose pictures, that all have an upward and broadening tendency. Why not live the richer, fuller, more beautiful life, if you can? If you do not know these things, there's untold pleasure awaiting you in exploring them. There's more of adventure and delight ahead, than ever awaited the early discoverers of this continent.

And deliberately choose associates who are a mental and spiritual uplift. Do not choose those whose influence pulls you down, whose conversation, even, is lowering in thought or language. Get yourself in touch with people who are a tonic, not a poison, or even a sedative.

You may need to prepare yourself for such associations by getting on their mental plane. But this you can do through books and pictures and music. And rest assured, when they find in you a kindred spirit, they will gladly welcome you.

And if you get in this helpful, uplifting environment, you will find good things coming your way. Like attracts like, in mental and spiritual realms, as well as in the physical.

And why deprive yourself of this good, when you can have it if you will? Why not enjoy beauty and success and a richer life, when it is yours for the taking? Why sit in shadow when you can bask in sunshine? You can choose your pleasures and your associates. And if you choose what is progressive and uplifting, it will be the door through which you can enter into many good things.

So look to your environment. Drop that which is pulling you down, and reach out and take hold of that which will lift you up.

Cottage cheese made from skim milk enriched with cream or other fat is pronounced a "cheap, digestible and nutritious food." As a result of recent experiments made by the United States department of agriculture. This accords with the recommendation favoring cottage cheese in preference to even the best old cheese, which, although it has been proved more digestible than meat and a better source of protein, has yet occasionally caused poisoning. The average person eats too much protein, but cottage cheese is good substitute for meat, and as the price of meat must advance the masses must learn to use less.

TAILORED SUITS.

Many women are simplifying the clothes problem nowadays by including in their wardrobes one plain tailored suit, cut on mannish lines and devoid of any suggestion of trimming. So many occasions arise when just such a suit is the only appropriate thing to wear if one would not only look smart but feel perfectly comfortable as well, that few women can forego the comfort of it. The new materials are indescribably handsome in themselves this spring. Take the hair-line striped worsteds, for instance, in the various shades of plum, navy blue, purple and gray combined with black. These materials tailor perfectly and lend themselves so well to the new vogue of trimming with bands of self material set on contrarily that they are counted as ultra-smart. — Harper's Bazar.

Many a man resembles the dog in the manger, because he wants to have a finger in the pie simply to prevent others from eating it.

HOW SOCIETY WOMAN WARDS OFF WRINKLES.

"Wrinkles are not strangers to me, but when I acquire such disfigurements, I know how to lose them in a hurry. A well-known society matron confided this to me. 'I had wondered how she, with her strenuous social duties and late hours, could so completely ward off the usual marks of care and dissipation. "I don't wear wrinkles in public, nor those horrid rings beneath the eyes," she continued, "since I have learned what plain, ordinary saxeolite will do. When any of those hateful marks appear I send to the drug store for an ounce of powdered saxeolite, and a half pint of witch hazel. I mix the two, bathe my face in the solution and—that's the whole secret. I've never tried anything that works so miraculously. My chin is inclined to double; this trouble, too, I keep in check in the same way." — Emily Dean in Town Talk.

1400 PENNIES ARE DEPOSITED IN POSTAL BANK

To Date Newark Postal Savings Bank Has 79 Depositors. Average Amount $15.

A man carrying a big sack of money entered the postoffice here Wednesday and sought the postal savings department. The clerk who waited upon him expected from the size of the sack a big deposit but when the count was made the sum amounted to $14 even.

The deposit consisted of 1400 pennies—all new Lincoln pennies at that and it took an hour to wrap the coin up in 50 cent packages. The depositor explained that he had been saving all Lincoln pennies that had come into his possession and decided to put the money to work. The Postal Savings bank pays 2 per cent interest if the money is left on deposit for a year. The postmaster places the money in one of the Newark banks which pays 2 1/2 % interest to the government.

The Newark postal savings bank was established Nov. 4, 1911. To date the number of depositors is only 79, the average deposits being about $15.

One may deposit $1 or $100. Amounts as low as 10 cents may be deposited, but for sums under one dollar stamps are issued. Among the depositors are several women, a number of children and a number of foreigners. O. C. Jones, mayor of Buckeye Lake, was the first depositor in the Newark Postal Savings bank.

RETURNS FROM MICHIGAN WITH INDIAN WORK

George Franklin, insurance agent, who has been at Wallon Lake, near Petoskey, Mich., where he is largely interested in real estate, having several hundred lots fronting the lake, on the market, has returned to Newark and will remain here until the first of May when he will return to Michigan.

Mr. Franklin brought with him a large collection of fancy work, numbing over one hundred and fifty pieces, made by the Indians near Petoskey, and which consists of all kinds of baskets, bead work and leather bags, birch bark and porcupine quills and other articles, which he has on display in room 301 of the Trust building, on the same floor with the Franklin Insurance office. Persons interested in work of this kind are invited to call and inspect the different articles which will be disposed of at reasonable prices. Look for advertisements in the Advocate.

ERIE MEN OPEN THEIR CAMPAIGN

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 25.—The baseball committee of the Chamber of Commerce, headed by President E. H. Brown, "got on the job" yesterday with a vengeance, determined to leave nothing undone to save league baseball for Erie. The plan of the committee is to have 500 Erie men with sporting blood in their veins subscribe $20 each for one share of stock in the baseball organization. This would net $10,000 to place the team on its feet at the start. To each subscriber it is proposed to give a season ticket.

COOKING BY STEAM.

Mr. Barnard recommends a steam-cooker for preparing certain meats and vegetables, claiming it is by far the best way both for cooking thoroughly and preserving all the nutriment and flavor in the food. "Never boil anything," he says, and to prove his point he compares the superior flavor of the tomato or potato steamed with that which has been boiled or cooked in other ways. Into the same utensil which he uses for cooking his eggs in the morning can be put raw tomatoes lightly skinned. They are then allowed to steam until tender. Their flavor is rich and delicious instead of being flat and tasteless, as is usually the case when they are cooked in a stewpan. The same method is used in cooking apples. Cabbage prepared in this manner not only retains its delicate green color, but has a most palatable flavor. — Harper's Bazar.

The Plain Dealer and the Woman in the Home

The Plain Dealer has a particularly definite appeal to the woman in the home; in Plain Dealer's woman's page.

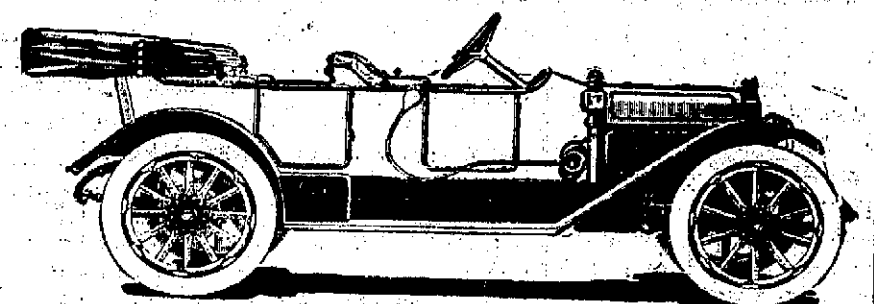

The progress of a few years' recent, has raised housekeeping almost to the level of a science. Much of this advance has been accomplished through periodicals such as the Plain Dealer. The Plain Dealer is quick to chronicle any progress in the science of home management. It is careful to avoid empty facts.

The woman who wishes to attend her household skillfully appreciates this scrupulous sorting out of the sound from the unsound, the broad service of this carefully edited department for her alone.

That's why the Plain Dealer has the most read woman's page in Ohio. Single subscriptions $3.00 a year—rates for subscription clubs as low as $2. Simply mail the money and your order.

Plain Dealer, 529 Superior Ave. N. E. Cleveland

The Plain Dealer sent to our outside-the-city readers is identically the same newspaper we distribute inside the city. Not a "Country Edition" of 8 or 10 pages, but the same big, broad-gauge newspaper for everyone.

Her Face and Brow

James Whitcomb Riley

Help me! but her face and brow are lovelier than lilies are Beneath the light of moon and star That smile as they are smiling now.

Whitelilies in a pallid swoon Of sweetest white beneath the moon.

White lilies in a flood of bright Pure lucidness of liquid light Cascading down some plenilune, When all the azure overhead Blooms like a dazzling daisy-bed.

So luminous her face and brow, The luster of their glory, shed In memory, even, blinds me now.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How Two Clever Boys Made Baby Minding Easy

"PITY that little girl across the way. She has to mind their baby all the time," Evelyn said.

"Maybe she doesn't care," said Jack hopefully.

"Let us hope she doesn't," daddy agreed. "Some babies can be quite interesting playmates, though."

"When I was a boy I had to do a good deal of baby minding. I remember one summer I had more than my share of it. Two of the children were away visiting grandma. I was left at home to take care of baby."

"One morning a new family moved into the place across the way from us. I should like to have spent the morning swinging on our gate watching the men unload the wagons, but if I turned my back the baby would go grubbing into the flowerbeds or tip a pail of water over himself or tease the dog."

"The next day when I went out I noticed another baby. It was in the yard across the way, and a boy of about my size was minding it. I had to laugh when I saw the trouble he was having with his baby, and in my glee I called 'Hi, yi, there!' in very friendly tones. The other boy stopped to study me. I guess he thought I looked all right, for presently he came down to their gate, and I came down to ours. By and by we opened our gates and stood in the road and talked."

"Suddenly I thought of our baby. I looked around, and what do you think—there was our baby sitting out in the road with the little boy's baby making mud pies as happily as you please."

"We hastily dragged the babies back into the yards and closed the gates and went on with our talk over the fences. But the babies were not satisfied any more. Our baby pushed her little nose through the palings and stretched out her chubby little arms to the little one across the way. The baby over there was trying as earnestly to coax our baby over into her yard."

"I looked at the little boy; he looked at me."

"You come on over in our yard, and then our babies can play together, and you and I can play together, too!" I cried. It was a great idea.

"Soon we were leading our babies to a nice quiet corner of our yard where there was a sand pile, and in a jiffy the two fell to work and dug and pounded and scooped away at the sand as merry as two little grigs while their two big brothers got acquainted and had a game of ball."

"He was a nice boy, was our new neighbor, and after that every day when we had babies to mind we asked our mothers to let us join forces. Then one baby played about with the other, and baby minding was just no trouble at all."

THE NATIONAL GUARD

The National Guard, while founded on the militia, should not be confused with it, as it is a very different organization. The militia was the original organization of the colonies, composed of men of uncertain value during the Revolutionary war, so much so that Congress authorized the raising of a Continental army, made up of men from different states. This system continued during the period of the Confederacy. When the Constitution was adopted it there recognized the two forms of military force, a national army, and militia of the various states. The Constitution empowered Congress to provide for "calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions." Also, "to provide for organizing, arming and disciplining the militia, reserving to the states the appointment of the officers, and the training of the militia according to regulations prescribed by Congress." Congress acted upon this authority in 1792. This law remained in force in few amendments until 1903. Under this law, Congress authorized the president to call forth the militia, but limited the service to nine months. It provided that the militia could be taken outside of the United States. All able bodied men between the ages of 18 and 45, with the exception of those specially exempted, composed the militia. Compulsory service was required in time of war to the extent of complete enlistment, organization and an annual drill. Each enlisted man of the militia was required to arm himself with the following arms: A good rifle or firelock of a bore sufficient to pound, a sufficient bayonet and two spare flints and a knapsack. A pouch with a box therein containing not less than twenty-four cartridges, each cartridge to contain proper quantity of powder and shot, or with a good rifle, knapsack powder horn, twenty balls sufficient to load the bore of his rifle and a quarter pound of powder. Each officer was armed with a sword and hanger or sword.

Following this law, the states, in their constitutions or their laws, recognized the militia and provided for enrolling them, organizing military districts and appointing military commanders. Under this system the militia was an utter failure. It was not enough in early history, the colonies, when the population was small. It became worse and worse as the population increased. The individual failed to provide himself with proper arms, the arms in use became obsolete and the States did not keep up the organizations. No attempt was made at uniformity in the different states. The annual muster became a travesty. On one occasion a regiment appeared for muster armed with cornstalks. In many instances the excuse for not attending the muster was racing, wrestling matches and prize fights. There were a number of the old militia organizations, however, dating back to Colonial times, but kept up a fair degree of military efficiency and a regular organization. The militia system, however, was largely used in the War of 1812, but was so unreliable that it is stated on one occasion the militia was faced in the first line and told to fire at least one volley before falling back. No attempt was made to use the militia in the Mexican war, and very little use was made of it in the Civil War. The first call in the latter was made upon the militia for temporary service and it was occasionally used during the war by the States when invaded.

After the Civil War there arose in most of the States volunteer military organizations, made up by volunteer enlistments. The States began to recognize these organizations and to make proper appropriations for their support. The National Government also began to make appropriations for their arms and equipments. Under this volunteer plan a fair degree of military efficiency was attained, and the name of "National Guard" was adopted by most, if not all of the States.

This National Guard made up almost the entire first call of 125,000 men for the Spanish American war. They did not, however, enter this service as militia, but as volunteers. A special law was passed by Congress authorizing the president to accept National Guard organization by regiments, but each individual man had to enlist under this volunteer act and there was considerable delay in transferring the regiments from the State to the National service.

The experiences of the Spanish-American War made it apparent to both the National Guard and the regular army that if the National Guard was to be an effective military force for war service it must be organized, equipped and disciplined the same as the regular army. Also that there should be some means of transferring the National Guard organizations to the United States service without the delay incident to re-enlistment or volunteering.

After careful study a new militia bill was presented to Congress and was enacted into a law January 21, 1903. This, with subsequent amendments, placed the organized militia, or National Guard, where it was originally intended to be by the Constitution. This last recognized the name Organized Militia or National Guard. Congress also made additional appropriations for arms, clothing and equipment. It is now as much a recognized part of the military resources of the national government as is the regular or standing army. It can be called directly into the service of the United States by organizations without new enlistments. The organizations as such can be called for indefinite service, each officer and man serving for the balance of his term of commission or enlistment. It is expected to be in such a state of readiness as to be prepared for immediate active war service, and as a matter of fact, it would form largely the first line.

The National Guard of the various States has become uniform in organization, equipment and discipline. This new function of the National Guard has brought about the necessity for a very different kind of training. In fact it must be trained to perform all the duties required by the State in time of peace, in maintaining law and order and protecting life and property, and in addition thereto be trained in all those duties which would have to be performed in active war service. It is therefore a dual organization—state organization in time of peace and a National organization in time of war.

Few realize how much training is now required of the National Guard, but this may be classified under the following general heads:

The use and care of arms.

Sanitation and care of the wounded in the field.

Discipline.

The science of war.

In former times the simplicity of fire arms did not require the same amount of training as at present. With modern rifles, the effective range in open country is one mile. At one thousand yards, firing should be quite accurate. The rifle itself is complicated, involving a great deal of care in keeping it in proper condition. The artillery arm is even more complicated and has an effective range of over three miles. The firing of this arm, as a rule, is indirect. That is, by means of a system of mathematical calculations the field piece can be fired from a concealed position without the object fired at being in view. Coast batteries are still more complex. Much time, therefore, must be spent in training men at target practice, as well as in the care of arms, before they are properly trained for war service. This, perhaps, is one of the most difficult tasks presented, requiring patience on the part of both officers and men.

Until recent years, little attention was paid to sanitary laws in active field service, neither was the individual man trained in the methods of caring for himself in the field. Without going into unnecessary details, it may be stated in a general way that much time and effort is now spent in training men not only to understand but to observe proper sanitary regulations.

In the care of the wounded in the field much attention is given. All men are taught the application of first aid to the wounded. They are provided with simple bandages and taught the use of same. All wounds not serious are dressed on the field of battle, thereby saving much loss of life. Thousands of well trained men slightly wounded are returned in a few days or weeks to their proper commands.

The word "discipline" is used here in its broadest sense. It means prompt and cheerful obedience to orders, accurate and faithful performance of duty, and, above all, the proper co-ordination of each unit to all others, orderly administration of all departments, in general, all those things which make an army move like a well adjusted piece of machinery, each part fitting into the other, and each part adjusted to do the particular thing for which it is designed.

It takes more time, probably, to acquire good discipline than any other part of the soldier's training. It requires the constant supervision of officers, the frequent bringing together of each branch of the service; it requires a thorough knowledge of customs, forms and regulations.

Officers must be schooled in the effective training and handling of men in the field, not only in preparation for battle, but in battle itself.

This is done by actual service in the field. Under present plans, frequent mobilization of the National Guard with the Regular Army is particularly important, especially in coordinating these two branches of the service. This training is obtained by performing the same kind of duties in the open country as might be required in actual war, scouting, reconnaissance, patrolling, advance and rear guard, extended order, battle exercises, marching and reading maps, judging distances and elevations, plans of battle, issuing of orders in proper form, etc.

In the absence of the opportunity for field service, military problems are worked out on maps devised for this purpose. There is no limit to the amount of work that can be done along this line. The National Guard is now being trained in all these duties and it is becoming in fact as well as in name, a military organization.

It now consists of 120,000 officers and men, and this number, by enlistment to the full war strength of companies, could be almost doubled. Its present full value to the government, therefore, should be estimated at 200,000 officers and men.

To secure the efficient training of the National Guard involves a greater expense than can well be afforded by the States. The National Government has adopted a liberal policy in providing arms, clothing and equipment. The great difficulty now faced is in the fact that the National Guardsman must earn his own livelihood, and the training, particularly for national service, involves an amount of time and effort which he really cannot afford to give without some reward. It is manifest that we have arrived at a point where some compensation should be made and this should come from the National Government.

To accomplish this is a bill now before Congress which provides for compensation on the basis of a percentage of pay for the Regular Army. The benefits of such a bill insuring a higher degree of efficiency, can hardly be estimated, and it should therefore receive the hearty support of all citizens.

The National Guard is particularly commended to the earnest consideration of all employers. It is believed that if they thoroughly understand its importance and value, they will unhesitatingly encourage the young men in their employ to enlist, and will willingly grant them the amount of time from their regular work to properly perform the military duties required.

This country should certainly feel proud of its National Guard and it should stand ready to support it in every possible way. Its success will depend, as almost everything depends upon the good will of the people at large. It is doing all it can to merit this good will.

It is believed that in the development of this special form of militia, that is, the volunteer organization or National Guard, in conjunction with the regular army, the future problem of the military policy of this country is solved. It meets all the conditions required. In developing this force, no matter to what extent, men are not withdrawn from their regular vocations, and therefore from the productive capacity of the country. While filling their regular positions in life, they voluntarily devote part of their time in preparing themselves for military service. This form of military training does not encourage a prejudice in the minds of the people, but on the contrary, makes military service popular.

The value of the National Guard does not rest alone on the fact that it is an effective military force for war service. It is also a great educational institution. No one who understands the training can fail to come to the conclusion that the discipline required, the development of intelligence, the precise and orderly performance of duties, the develop-

HOW TO PREVENT MOUTH BREATHING

Here is a Simple Treatment That Opens the Head in a Few Minutes—Fine for Children.

Mouth breathing is very unhealthy. Nothing is more important to one's health than that the air passages should be kept free at all times, especially during sleep, so that the air will be warmed and purified before it is taken into the lungs. Nature has provided the nostrils for this purpose. The NOSTRIOLA Treatment applied to the nostrils will quickly open up the head and clear the air passages.

Don't fail to use NOSTRIOLA promptly, even though there is but a slight indication of cold in the head, for a simple cold is often the beginning of catarrh, which leads to poisoned stomach, kidneys and bowels—and bad health. CITY PATROLMAN ADJUSTS TROUBLE OF BELIGERENTS

Solomon, who, up to this time has held the record of being a wise man, has nothing on Patrolman Ed. Hurlbaugh of the Newark police force. Hurlbaugh, unlike the wise man of Biblical days, was not arrayed particularly gloriously, but that did not interfere with the wisdom of his decision in a case which required his attention Wednesday.

The patrolman came across two men, an employer and an employee, who were having a heated argument over a sum of money which the employee claimed was due him.

The talk had become so loud that it was high time some one interceded to prevent a more serious situation. The employer, a little man, being well up in years, was being threatened by his former helper, who towered over him with a head and shoulders above him. In addition to the difference in size, the employee had the advantage of youth and health over his adversary, besides being unreasonable from undue excess in strong drink.

The officer took the pair to police headquarters and required each to relate his story. He found that the employer was willing to pay the employee what was coming to him, but that he was not prepared at the moment to settle. The other insisted on settlement at once, and he would "get satisfaction" by beating up his former employer.

Patrolman Hurlbaugh finally told the two to meet at police headquarters Saturday, where the employer promised to settle in full. He also warned the belligerent creditor that any "rough stuff" was barred and that any report that he had re-opened the case before Saturday would result in his arrest.

The two left headquarters fully satisfied that they had gotten justice from the "court" and each agreed to be on hand. They each took a different direction at the door of the police station, evidently wishing to avoid the possibility of trouble.

JUDGE WM. B. CREW DIED SUDDENLY LAST EVENING

Marietta, O., Jan. 25.—Former Judge William Binford Crew of the Ohio supreme court, died suddenly in a hotel shortly before nine o'clock last night.

Judge Crew came here Wednesday morning from his home in McConville and drove in a buggy to Parkersburg, W. Va., to look after some business affairs. He seemed in perfect health. He drove back last evening, ate a fair supper at the hotel, but after the meal, complained of feeling ill, and went to his room.

In the course of an hour, feeling no better, he called a physician, but he sank rapidly, and died just before 9 o'clock.

The body probably will be taken to McConville for burial, though, since his retirement from the supreme bench a year ago, Judge Crew had lived most of the time with his daughter, Mrs. Henry B. Gall, of Cleveland, who is visiting Prof. and Mrs. Wallace S. Eden, 1734 Summit street, Columbus. A son, Fleming Crew, is an attorney in Cleveland.

Judge Crew was born in Morgan county, April 1, 1852. He was educated at Westtown College and Ohio State University, studied law at the Union Law School, and was graduated in 1874. Two years later he was elected prosecuting attorney of Morgan county.

He was elected a member of the legislature in 1889 and to the common pleas bench from 1891 to 1892, when he was appointed to the supreme court bench to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge M. J. Williams. He was elected to succeed himself in November, 1902, and left the bench in February, 1911.

PILOT DEAD

Big Liner Cleveland Veers Like a Drunken Monster and Rams U. S. Cruiser Colorado.

Honolulu, Jan. 25.—Her pilot lying dead on the bridge, the victim of a sudden attack of heart failure, and with no guiding hand at the wheel, the great Hawaiian-American liner, Cleveland, carrying hundreds of "round the world tourists" left her course in the harbor here yesterday and after veering about for several minutes like a drunken monster, rammed the United States armored cruiser Colorado, lying at anchor.

The passengers, terror-stricken, rushed to the decks in hordes, and the ship's officers were for a moment nonplused by the inexplicable behavior of the vessel.

Finally the quartermaster rushed to the bridge and stumbled over the body of Milton P. Sanders, a harbor pilot, who had taken the wheel when the boat entered the port.

He immediately signaled the engineers to reverse the propellers. The liner backed away from the cruiser and the anchor was dropped.

The line suffered practically no damage, but the cruiser was badly jammed, one gun being ruined. Had the liner struck a few feet near midship here, how would have crashed into the bow of Captain William A. Gill, who was seated at his desk at the time of the collision. One of the cruiser's propellers was also damaged.

The Cleveland which sailed from New York several weeks ago, arrived from China and Japan yesterday. She will remain in port 24 hours. None of her passengers, practically all of whom are Americans, suffered any injuries.

The Colorado, which was launched eight years ago, has gone ashore twice, lost two men by the bursting of a steam pipe and suffered many mishaps. She is the fastest big ship in the service.

STUDENT'S KISS CAUSED MUMPS

Boston, Jan. 25.—Because a senior pressed a letter from his sweetheart to his lips, about 15 per cent of the students of Clark's College are down with the mumps, the debating team has been disrupted and the basketball schedule has been abandoned, several of the star players being victims of the epidemic.

Determined to trace the epidemic to its source, the authorities investigated the student's correspondence.

The senior embarrassedly admitted receiving the billet-doux from a locality where the disease prevailed, and that he was stricken soon after bestowing a kiss upon the missive, which was subsequently found to be germ-laden.

SINGLE TAX

EXPUNDED BY BISHOP CHAS. D. WILLIAMS OF MICHIGAN.

Lecture Given Under Auspices of Men's Club at Trinity Episcopal Parish House Wednesday.

Declaring against the granting of absolute titles to public resources, to individuals and corporations and against a system of taxation which amounted to fining the man who improved his property, Rt. Rev. Charles D. Williams, D. D., Bishop of Michigan expounded the theories of single tax at the Trinity Episcopal parish house Wednesday evening before a good sized audience of men and women.

The lecture was under the auspices of the Men's Club of Trinity church, and preceding the public address, the Bishop was a guest and spoke at a banquet of the club in the church parlors.

Bishop Williams' explanation of the theory of single tax was clear. His method of delivering his message was interesting and he held the close attention of his hearers throughout the hour's address.

The speaker confined himself largely to the moral side of the question, after explaining that the expression "single tax" was a misnomer, that the theory was wrongly named. Dr. Williams explained that the single tax was but one of several essential features to the whole creed or theory. He said that it was really composed of fiscal, economic and moral features and told his audience that he expected to confine himself to the moral side of the issue.

He said that a "single taxer" was neither an anarchist nor a Socialist, no more than a Socialist was an anarchist. He explained that it was impossible for one man to be both a socialist and an anarchist as the two were as opposite as the two poles.

He declared that the "single taxer" believed that it was the equal right of all men to the use of the earth or access to nature's resources, that what the individual produced, belonged to the individual; that what the country produced, belonged to the country; that what nature gives belongs to the children of nature, hence the control and monopolization of any natural resource by an individual or corporation was contrary to the laws of nature. The primitive people recognized the common right of all to nature's resources.

He illustrated the fallacy of giving away the right and title to the natural resources, to individuals or corporations by referring to the great anthracite coal region. This region is absolutely controlled by one man.

The speaker compared this to the coal cellar of the nation to which the entire nation has an equal right. The right was given to one man to carry up the coal from the cellar for which he was to receive a reasonable compensation. In addition, he was given the key to the coal cellar and when he demanded more money for carrying up coal and this was refused he locked the cellar and denied the nation access to the supply until his demand was met.

The speaker diagnosed the illness of this country to be due largely to a wrong system of taxation. He said the man who owned the right to the center of a city which blocked the progress of the city, got his property taxed at farm land rates while the man across the street, who improved his property by the erection of a substantial building, was fined, by having his taxes boosted higher.

He stated that the solution to the problem was the removal of all tax except that upon land values and ground rentals. He would let the state be the landlord of the nation. He would let the man who had the source he could best develop, pay rental into the common treasury, and then get out of his resource all the wealth his ability can produce. He would place no burden upon industry or ingenuity.

This would result in a stimulation of industry and would be a great factor in stopping labor troubles.

E. W. Doty, chairman of the taxation committee of the constitutional convention, who was to have been present to introduce Bishop Williams, was unable to do so, but Rev. L. P. Franklin, rector of the Trinity church, in a few appropriate remarks introduced the speaker.

HOW ENGLISH BEAUTIES REEL THEIR FACES.

(From Society World)

"While abroad recently I could not help observing that the average Englishwoman's complexion is far more beautiful than that of the average woman in our country," says Mrs. Scott, secretary of the National Health-Culture Society. "Making inquiries, several intimate friends in London confided to me that they regularly used on their faces what is commercially known as mercolized wax. I do not know whether the habit is general there, but I do know that this wax has wonderful rejuvenating properties. I've tried it myself."

"If you will get an ounce of this mercolized wax at your drug store and apply it like cold cream, you will soon behold in your glowing cheeks their first resemblance to the remarkable transparent beauty of the Englishwoman's complexion. This wax gradually peels off the lifeless scurf skin in tiny, almost imperceptible flakes, revealing the fresh, new skin underneath, pinky white, with the bloom of youth and health."

Water used in Aden, Arabia, is pumped from wells ten miles away. Distilled water is delivered at 75 cents and ordinary well water at 40 cents for 100 gallons.

China is building a railroad line—the Szechwan-Hubei—which gives employment to 15,000 coolies.

TWENTY-SEVEN STRIKE RIOTERS GET PENITENTIARY TERMS AFTER MASSACHUSETTS MILITIAMEN CHARGE MOB WITH DRAWN BAYONETS

Militia Charging Rioters With Drawn Bayonets.

Three rioters have been sentenced to two years imprisonment and twenty-four to one year, in Lawrence, Mass., as a result of the strike disorders, when militiamen charged union sympathizers with drawn bayonets. The picture shows the soldiers sweeping back the mob during the trouble. The entire city of 90,000 people was placed under martial law.

Fifteen thousand textile workers, largely of foreign birth, are on strike. They went out when they found they were to be paid for two hours less than heretofore, a new law having reduced the weekly hours of labor from fifty-six to fifty-four. Many persons have been injured by bayonet and bullet.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

How Two Clever Boys Made Baby Minding Easy

The Babies Were Happy Making Mud Pies!

"PITY that little girl across the way. She has to mind their baby all the time," Evelyn said.

"Maybe she doesn't care," said Jack hopefully.

"Let us hope she doesn't," daddy agreed. "Some babies can be quite interesting playmates, though."

"When I was a boy I had to do a good deal of baby minding. I remember one summer I had more than my share of it. Two of the children were away visiting grandma. I was left at home to take care of baby."

"One morning a new family moved into the place across the way from us. I should like to have spent the morning swinging on our gate watching the men unload the wagons, but if I turned my back the baby would go grubbing into the flowerbeds or tip a pail of water over himself or tease the dog."

"The next day when I went out I noticed another baby. It was in the yard across the way, and a boy of about my size was minding it. I had to laugh when I saw the trouble he was having with his baby, and in my glee I called 'Hi, yi, there!' in very friendly tones. The other boy stopped to study me. I guess he thought I looked all right, for presently he came down to their gate, and I came down to ours. By and by we opened our gates and stood in the road and talked."

"Suddenly I thought of our baby. I looked around, and what do you think—there was our baby sitting out in the road with the little boy's baby making mud pies as happily as you please."

"We hastily dragged the babies back into the yards and closed the gates and went on with our talk over the fences. But the babies were not satisfied any more. Our baby pushed her little nose through the palings and stretched out her chubby little arms to the little one across the way. The baby over there was trying as earnestly to coax our baby over into her yard."

"I looked at the little boy; he looked at me."

"You come on over in our yard, and then our babies can play together, and you and I can play together, too!" I cried. It was a great idea.

"Soon we were leading our babies to a nice quiet corner of our yard where there was a sand pile, and in a jiffy the two fell to work and dug and pounded and scooped away at the sand as merry as two little girls while their two big brothers got acquainted and had a game of ball."

"He was a nice boy, was our new neighbor, and after that every day when we had babies to mind we asked our mothers to let us join forces. Then one baby played about with the other, and baby minding was just no trouble at all."

THE NATIONAL GUARD

The National Guard, while founded upon the militia, should not be confused with it, as it is a very different force. The militia was the original military organization of the colonies. It proved of uncertain value during the Revolutionary war, so much so that Congress authorized the raising of a Continental army, made up of levies from different states. This militia system continued during the period of the Confederacy. When the Constitution was adopted it therefore recognized the two forms of military force, a national army, and the militia of the various states. The Constitution empowered Congress to provide for "calling forth the militia to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions." Also, "to provide for organizing, arming and disciplining the militia, reserving to the states the appointment of the officers and the training of the militia according to regulations prescribed by Congress." Congress acted upon this authority and enacted the old militia law, May 8, 1792. This law remained in force with few amendments until 1903. Under this law, Congress authorized the president to call forth the militia, but limited the service to nine months and provided that the militia could not be taken outside of the United States. All able bodied men between the ages of 18 and 45, with the exception of those specifically exempted, composed the militia. Compulsory service was required in time of peace to the extent of complete enrollment, organization and annual muster. Each enlisted man of the militia was required to arm himself with the following arms: A good musket or firelock of a bore sufficient for balls of the eighteenth part of a pound, a sufficient bayonet and belt, two spare flints and a knapsack. A pouch with a box therein to contain not less than twenty-four cartridges, each cartridge to contain a proper quantity of powder and ball, or with a good rifle, knapsack and powder horn, twenty balls suited to the bore of his rifle and a quarter of a pound of powder. Each officer to be armed with a sword and hanger or epaulet.

Following this law, the states, either in their constitutions or their laws, recognized the militia and provided for enrolling them, organizing military districts and appointing military commanders. Under this system the militia was an utter failure. It was bad enough in early history of the colonies, when the population was small. It became worse and worse as the population increased. The individual failed to provide himself with proper arms, the arms in use became obsolete and the States did not keep up the organizations. No attempt was made at uniformity in the different states. The annual muster became a travesty. On one occasion a regiment appeared for muster armed with corushtals. In many instances it was made the excuse for drinking, horse racing, wrestling matches and prize fights. There were a number of the old militia organizations, however, dating back to Colonial times, that kept up a fair degree of military efficiency and a regular organization. The militia system, however, was largely used in the War of 1812, but was so unreliable that it is stated on one occasion the militia was placed in the first line and told to fire at least one volley before falling back. No attempt was made to use the militia in the Mexican war, and very little use was made of it in the Civil War. The first call in the latter war was made upon the militia for temporary service and it was occasionally used during the war by the states when invaded.

After the Civil War there arose in most of the States volunteer military organizations, made up by volunteer enlistments. The states began to recognize these organizations and to make proper appropriations for their support. The National Government also began to make appropriations for their arms and equipments. Under this volunteer plan a fair degree of military efficiency was attained, and the name of "National Guard" was adopted by most, if not all of the states.

This National Guard made up almost the entire first call of 125,000 men for the Spanish American war. They did not, however, enter this service as militia, but as volunteers. A special law was passed by Congress authorizing the president to accept National guard organization by regiments, but each individual man had to enlist under this volunteer act and there was considerable delay in transferring the regiments from the state to the National service.

The experiences of the Spanish-American War made it apparent to both the National Guard and the regular army that if the National Guard was to be an effective military force for war service it must be organized, equipped and disciplined the same as the regular army. Also that there should be some means of transferring the National Guard organizations to the United States service without the delay incident to re-enlistment or volunteering.

After careful study a new militia bill was presented to Congress and was enacted into a law January 21, 1903. This, with subsequent amendments, placed the organized militia, or National Guard, where it was originally intended to be by the constitution. This last recognized the name Organized Militia or National Guard. Congress also made additional appropriations for arms, clothing and equipment. It is now as much a recognized part of the military resources of the national government as is the regular or standing army. It can be called directly into the service of the United States by organizations without new enlistments. The organizations as such can be called for indefinite service, each officer and man serving for the balance of his term of commission or enlistment. It is expected to be in such a state of readiness as to be prepared for immediate, active war service, and, as a matter of fact, it would form largely the first line.

The National Guard of the various states has become a National organization in time of war. This new function of the National Guard has brought about the necessity for a very different kind of training. In fact it must be trained to perform all the duties required by the state in time of peace, in maintaining law and order and protecting life and property, and in addition thereto be trained in all those duties which would have to be performed in active war service. It is therefore a dual organization—state organization in time of peace and a National organization in time of war.

Few realize how much training is now required of the National Guard, but this may be classified under the following general heads:

The use and care of arms. Sanitation and care of the wounded in the field. Discipline.

The science of war. In former times the simplicity of fire arms did not require the same amount of training as at present. With modern rifles, the effective range in open country is one mile. At one thousand yards, firing should be quite accurate. The rifle itself is complicated, involving a great deal of care in keeping it in proper condition. The artillery arm is even more complicated and has an effective range of over three miles. The firing of this arm, as is a rule, indirect. That is, by means of a system of mathematical calculations the field pieces can be fired from a concealed position without the object fired at being in view. Coast batteries are still more complex. Much time, therefore, must be spent in training men at target practice, as well as in the care of arms, before they are properly trained for war service. This, perhaps, is one of the most difficult tasks presented, requiring patience on the part of both officers and men.

Until recent years, little attention was paid to sanitary laws in active field service, neither was the individual man trained in the methods of caring for himself in the field. Without going into unnecessary details, it may be stated in a general way that much time and effort is now spent in training men not only to understand but to observe proper sanitary regulations.

In the care of the wounded in the field much attention is given. All men are taught the application of first aid to the wounded. They are provided with simple bandages and taught the use of same. All wounds of battle, thereby saving much loss of life. Thousands of well trained men slightly wounded are returned in a few days or weeks to their proper commands.

The word "discipline" is used here in its broadest sense. It means prompt and cheerful obedience to orders, accurate and faithful performance of duty, and, above all, the proper co-ordination of each unit to all others, orderly administration of all departments; in general, all those things which make an army move like a well adjusted piece of machinery, each part fitting into the other, and each part adjusted to do the particular thing for which it is designed.

If it takes more time, probably, to secure good discipline than any other part of the soldier's training. It requires the constant supervision of officers, the frequent bringing together of each branch of the service; it requires a thorough knowledge of customs, forms and regulations.

Officers must be schooled in the effective training and handling of men in the field, not only in preparation for battle, but in battle itself. This is done by actual service in the field. Under present plans, frequent mobilization of the National Guard with the Regular Army is particularly important, especially in co-ordinating these two branches of the service. This training is obtained by performing the same kind of duties in the open country as might be required in actual war, scouting, reconnaissance, patrolling, advance and rear guard, extended order, battle exercises, making and reading maps, judging distances and elevations, plans of battle, issuing of orders in proper form, etc.

In the absence of the opportunity for field service, military problems are worked out on maps devised for this purpose. There is no limit to the amount of work that can be done along this line. The National Guard is now being trained in all these duties and it is becoming in fact as well as in name, a military organization.

It now consists of 120,000 officers and men, and this number, by enlisting to the full war strength of companies, could be almost doubled. Its present full value to the government, therefore, should be estimated at 200,000 officers and men.

To secure the efficient training of the National Guard involves a greater expense than can well be afforded by the states. The National Government has adopted a liberal policy in providing arms, clothing and equipment. The great difficulty now faced is in the fact that the National guardsman must earn his own livelihood, and the training, particularly for national service, involves an amount of time and effort which he really cannot afford to give without some reward. It is manifest that we have arrived at a point where some compensation should be made and this should come from the National Government.

To accomplish this is a bill is now before Congress which provides for compensation on the basis of a percentage of pay for the Regular Army. The benefits of such a bill insuring a higher degree of efficiency, can hardly be estimated, and it should therefore receive the hearty support of all citizens.

The National Guard is particularly commended to the earnest consideration of all employers. It is believed that if they thoroughly understand its importance and value, they will unhesitatingly encourage the young men in their employ to enlist, and will willingly grant them the amount of time from their regular work to properly perform the military duties required.

This country should certainly feel proud of its National Guard and it should stand ready to support it in every possible way. Its success will depend, as almost everything depends upon the good will of the people at large. It is doing all it can to merit this good will.

It is believed that in the development of this special form of militia, that is, the volunteer organization or National Guard, in conjunction with the regular army, the future problem of the military policy of this country is solved. It meets all the conditions required. In developing this force, no matter to what extent, men are not withdrawn from their regular vocations, and therefore from the productive capacity of the country. While filling their regular positions in life, they voluntarily devote part of their time in preparing themselves for military service. This form of military training does not encourage a prejudice in the minds of the people, but on the contrary, makes military service popular.

The value of the National Guard does not rest alone on the fact that it is an effective military force for war service. It is also a great educational institution. No one who understands the training can fail to come to the conclusion that the discipline required, the development of intelligence, the precise and orderly performance of duties, the development of physical health and endurance, makes a better class of citizens. The Emperor of Germany has recently attributed the present commercial prosperity of Germany to the influence of the military training required of all able bodied young men.

No other institution is doing more to develop the patriotism of the country. The influence of the National Guardsman reaches into every walk of life and into every community. It is a leaven which raises the average patriotism of our citizens. It is a military school which is preparing thousands of young men for the defense of their country. These men will rally to the colors whenever the safety of our country and its institutions require it.

LUMBERMAN GIVES HARMON A BOOST

Kansas City, Jan. 25.—R. A. Long, of Kansas City, a wealthy lumberman, in an address at the convention of the Southwestern Lumbermen's Association, said that Governor Judson Harmon of Ohio is the only man who, as president, could bring about a settled condition of financial affairs in this country.

Mr. Long urged the delegates to use their influence toward making the Ohio executive the next president of the nation.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, it has become a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally and acts from the blood. It cures catarrh of the bladder, prostate gland and urethra in about three months. It cures the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case that cannot be cured. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by druggists. Fill "Take Hall's Family Pills for Constipation."

MURDER YOUNG WOMAN TEACHER IN OUSTER SCRAP

Salon Va., Jan. 25.—Attempts to oust a country teacher from her school led yesterday to the killing of Miss Eva Chambers, the teacher. Joshua Raines, husband of the woman prominent in the ouster attempt. She was shot to death near her school at Lockett's store, in Boone county. Raines surrendered, and last night was turned to Pulaski, because a lynching was feared. Some time ago Mr. Raines sought to have the teacher removed, and it was charged, circulated, reports reflecting upon the character of the teacher. Miss Chambers instituted a suit for slander. Raines called upon the teacher at her school yesterday and tried to get her to consent to dismiss the case. When she refused, he shot her.

HOW TO PREVENT MOUTH BREATHING

Here is a Simple Treatment That Opens the Head in a Few Minutes—Fine for Children.

Mouth breathing is very unhealthy. Nothing is more important to one's health than that the air passages should be kept free at all times, especially during sleep, so that the air will be warmed and purified before it is taken into the lungs. Nature has provided the nostrils for this purpose. The NOSTRIOLA Treatment applied to the nostrils will quickly open up the head and clear the air passages.

Don't fail to use NOSTRIOLA promptly, even though there is but a slight indication of cold in the head, for a simple cold is often the beginning of catarrh, which leads to poisoned stomach, kidneys and bowels—and bad health. NOSTRIOLA is a preventive and should be used before serious conditions develop.

Many people in this vicinity have learned of the value of the NOSTRIOLA Treatment for Catarrh, Cold in Head, Croup, Hay Fever, and it quickly heals cuts, burns, bruises, etc. In fact, NOSTRIOLA is a valuable household article, handy to have around. Ask your druggist about it, get a 25c tube today, and you'll wish you had tried NOSTRIOLA sooner.

FIRST NUPTIAL KNOT GRACEFULLY TIED BY MAYOR

Miss Anna Murry and Ray Farlow were united in marriage Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, the ceremony being performed by Mayor F. Marion Swartz. This is the first marriage ceremony Mayor Swartz has been called upon to solemnize, but like the other duties of his office, he met the situation gracefully, and went through the service as though it were a common occurrence with him. The couple will reside in Newark.

CITY PATROLMAN ADJUSTS TROUBLE OF BELIGERENTS

Solomon, who, up to this time has held the record of being a wise man, has nothing on Patrolman Ed. Hurlbaugh of the Newark police force. Hurlbaugh, unlike the wise man of Biblical days, was not arrayed particularly gloriously, but that did not interfere with the wisdom of his decision in a case which required his attention Wednesday.

The patrolman came across two men, an employer and an employee, who were having a heated argument over a sum of money which the employee claimed was due him.

The talk had become so loud that it was high time some one interferred to prevent a more serious situation. The employer, a little man, being well up in years, was being threatened by his former helper, who towered a good head and shoulders above him in addition to the difference in size, the employee had the advantage of youth and health over his adversary, besides being unreasonably drunk from undue excess in strong drink.

The officer took the pair to police headquarters and required each to relate his story. He found that the employer was willing to pay the employee what was coming to him, but that he was not prepared at the moment to settle. The other insisted on settlement at once, or he would "get satisfaction" by beating up his former employer.

Patrolman Hurlbaugh finally told the two to meet at police headquarters Saturday, where the employer promised to settle in full. He also warned the belligerent creditor that any "rough stuff" was barred and that any report that he had reopened the case, before Saturday would result in his arrest.

The two left headquarters fully satisfied that they had gotten justice from the "court" and each agreed to be on hand. They each took a different direction at the door of the police station, evidently wishing to avoid the possibility of trouble.

JUDGE WM. B. CREW DIED SUDDENLY LAST EVENING

Marionetta, O., Jan. 25.—Former Judge William Buford Crew of the Ohio supreme court, died suddenly in a hotel shortly before nine o'clock last night.

Judge Crew came here Wednesday morning from his home in McDonnellsville and drove in a buggy to Parkersburg, W. Va., to look after some business affairs. He seemed in perfect health. He drove back last evening, ate a fair supper at the hotel, but after the meal, complained of feeling ill, and went to his room. In the course of an hour, feeling no better, he called a physician, but he sank rapidly, and died just before 9 o'clock.

The body probably will be taken to McDonnellsville for burial, though, since his retirement from the supreme bench a year ago, Judge Crew had lived most of the time with his daughter, Mrs. Henry R. Gall, of Cleveland, who is visiting Prof. and Mrs. Wallace S. Eden, 1734 Summit street, Columbus. A son, Fleming Crew, is an attorney in Cleveland.

Judge Crew was born in Morgan county, April 1, 1832. He was educated at Westtown College and Ohio State University, studied law at the Union Law School and was graduated in 1874. Two years later he was elected prosecuting attorney of Morgan county.

He was elected a member of the legislature in 1889 and to the common pleas bench from 1891 to 1892, when he was appointed to the supreme court bench to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge M. J. Williams. He was elected to succeed himself in November, 1902, and left the bench in February, 1911.

PILOT DEAD

Big Liner Cleveland Veers Like a Drunken Monster and Runs U. S. Cruiser Colorado.

Honolulu, Jan. 25.—Her pilot lying dead on the bridge, the victim of a sudden attack of heart failure, and with no guiding hand at the wheel, the giant Hamburg-American liner, the "Columbia," carrying hundreds of "round the world tourists," left her course in the harbor here yesterday and after veering about for several minutes like a drunken monster, rammed the United States armored cruiser Colorado, lying at anchor.

The passengers, terror-stricken, rushed to the decks in hordes, and the ship's officers were for a moment nonplused by the inexplicable behavior of the vessel.

Finally a quartermaster rushed to the bridge and stumbled over the body of Milton P. Sanders, a harbor pilot, who had taken the wheel when the boat entered the port.

He immediately signaled the engines to reverse the propellers. The liner backed away from the cruiser and the anchor was dropped.

The liner suffered practically no damage, but the cruiser was badly jammed, one gun being ruined. Had the liner struck a few feet near midship her bow would have crashed into the cabin of Captain William A. Gill, who was seated at his desk at the time of the collision. One of the cruiser's propellers was also damaged.

The Cleveland, which sailed from New York several weeks ago, arrived from China and Japan yesterday. She will remain in port 24 hours. None of her passengers, practically all of whom are Americans, sustained any injuries.

The Colorado, which was launched eight years ago, has gone ashore twice, lost two men by the bursting of a steam pipe and suffered many mishaps. She is the fastest big ship in the service.

STUDENT'S KISS CAUSED MUMPS

Boston, Jan. 25.—Because a senior pressed a letter from his sweetheart to his lips, about 15 per cent of the students of Clark's College are down with the mumps, the debating team has been disrupted and the basketball schedule has been abandoned, several of the star players being victims of the epidemic.

Determined to trace the epidemic to its source, the authorities investigated the student's correspondence. The senior embarrassedly admitted receiving the billet-doux from a locality where the disease prevailed, and that he was stricken soon after bestowing a kiss upon the missive, which was subsequently found to be germ-laden.

SINGLE TAX

EXPOUNDED BY BISHOP CHAS. D. WILLIAMS OF MICHIGAN.

Lecture Given Under Auspices of Men's Club at Trinity Episcopal Parish House Wednesday.

Declaring against the granting of absolute titles to public resources, to individuals and corporations, and against a system of taxation which amounted to fining the man who improved his property, Rt. Rev. Charles D. Williams, D. D., Bishop of Michigan expounded the theories of single tax at the Trinity Episcopal parish house Wednesday evening before a good sized audience of men and women.

The lecture was under the auspices of the Men's Club of Trinity church and preceding the public address, the Bishop was a guest and spoke at a banquet of the club in the church parlors.

Bishop Williams' explanation of the theory of single tax was clear. His method of delivering his message was interesting and he held the close attention of his hearers throughout the hour's address.

The speaker confined himself largely to the moral side of the question, after explaining that the expression "single tax" was a misnomer, that the theory was wrongly named.

Dr. Williams' explanation of the single tax was but one of several essential features to the whole creed or theory. He said that it was really composed of fiscal, economic and moral features and told his audience that he expected to confine himself to the moral side of the issue.

He said that a "single taxer" was neither an anarchist nor a Socialist, no more than a Socialist was an anarchist. He explained that it was impossible for one man to be both a socialist and an anarchist as the two were as opposite as the two poles.

He declared that the "single taxer" believed that it was the equal right of all men to the use of the earth or access to nature's resources, that what the individual produced, belonged to the individual; that what the country produced, belonged to the country; that what nature gives belongs to the children of nature, hence the control or monopolization of any natural resources by an individual or corporation was contrary to the laws of nature. The primitive people recognized the common right of all to nature's resources.

He illustrated the fallacy of giving away the right and title to the natural resources, to individuals or corporations by referring to the great anthracite coal region. This region is absolutely controlled by one man. The speaker compared this to the coal cellar of the nation to which the entire nation has an equal right. The right was given to one man to carry up the coal from the mines, and he was to receive a reasonable compensation. In addition, he was given the key to the coal cellar and when he demanded more money for carrying up coal and this was refused, he locked the cellar and denied the nation access to the supply until his demand was met.

The speaker diagnosed the illness of this country to be due largely to a wrong system of taxation. He said the man who owned vacant lots in the center of a city which blocked the progress of the city got his property taxed at farm land rates while the man across the street, who improved his property by the erection of a substantial building, was fined, by having his taxes boosted higher.

He stated that the solution to the problem was the removal of all tax except that upon land values and ground rentals. He would let the state be the landlord of the nation. He would let each man take the resource he could best develop, and then get out of his resource and the wealth his ability can produce. He would place no burden upon industry or ingenuity.

This would result in a stimulation of industry and would be a great factor in stopping labor troubles.

E. W. Doty, chairman of the taxation committee of the constitutional convention, who was to have been present to introduce Bishop Williams, was unable to be present. Rev. L. P. Francis, rector of the Trinity church, in fitting remarks introduced the speaker.

HOW ENGLISH BEAUTIES FEEL THEIR FACES.

(From Society World.)

"While abroad recently I could not help observing that the average Englishwoman's complexion is far more beautiful than that of the average woman in our country," says Miss Scott, secretary of the National Health-Culture Society. "Making inquiries, several intimate friends in London confided to me that they regularly used on their faces what is commercially known as merozole wax. I do not know whether the habit is general there, but I do know that this wax has wonderful rejuvenating properties. I've tried it myself."

If you will get an ounce of this merozole wax at your drug store and apply it like cold cream, you will soon behold in your glowing cheeks their first resemblance to the remarkable transparent beauty of the Englishwoman's complexion. This wax gradually peels off the lifeless scarf skin in tiny, almost imperceptible flakes, revealing the fresh, new skin underneath, pinky white, with the bloom of youth and health."

TWENTY-SEVEN STRIKE RIOTERS GET PENITENTIARY TERMS AFTER MASSACHUSETTS MILITIAMEN CHARGE MOB WITH DRAWN BAYONETS

Militia Charging Rioters With Drawn Bayonets.

Three rioters have been sentenced to two years imprisonment and twenty-four to one year, in Lawrence, Mass., as a result of the strike disorders, when militiamen charged union sympathizers with drawn bayonets. The picture shows the soldiers sweeping back the mob during the trouble. The entire city of 90,000 people was placed under martial law.

Fifteen thousand textile workers, largely of foreign birth, are on strike. They went out when they found they were to be paid for two hours less than heretofore, a new law having reduced the weekly hours of labor from fifty-six to fifty-four. Many persons have been injured by bayonet and bullet.

AMUSEMENTS

Press Agent Says:

HENRIETTA CROSMAN.

The most delightful comedy in years is called "The Real Thing." It ran for four months at the Maxine Elliott theatre, New York, only leaving there recently to make way for another production, for which it was impossible to break. The most delightful comedienne on the stage is Miss Henrietta Crosman, and to find her so appropriately placed as in the stellar role of the most delightful comedy of years, forms a "combination" that is magical. The play itself is up-to-date, dealing with the trouble a woman has, trying to divide her affection between her husband and her household duties and her children. If she neglects any one of these, the others claim too much of her time, and there is dissatisfaction and a lack of the entire cordiality. This comedy will be seen at the Auditorium Friday evening, and there is little doubt that the production of this play will be a positive sensation, as Miss Crosman's manager, Maurice Campbell, who never does a thing but what is a success, is producing the entire New York production intact, with the same wonderful cast of players that kept the audiences in New York rooking with laughter at every performance.

"HIP VAN WINKLE."

Thomas Jefferson will appear in "Hip Van Winkle" at the Auditorium Saturday matinee and night. This delightful and perennially new play in which he won renown over twelve years ago. Theatre-goers wonder why they never lose interest in this play or in the joyful and blithesome vagabond whom Mr. Jefferson portrays in it. It is not only because the actor invests the part with a consummate art that both impresses and wins, nor because Mr. Jefferson's characterization breathes a warmth and humanity, a gentility and real flesh-and-bloodness that are rarely found in modern stage creations, but because every time the part is played Mr. Jefferson adds some little touch here and there that gives it fresh novelty and that keeps its sweetness and fragrance forever new and attractive. The comedian has appeared in this character thousands of times and before perhaps over a million still he never fails to attract it with an eagerness and an enthusiasm that makes each new performance as interesting and as surprisingly delightful as if it were a premiere.

THE ORPHEUM.

You can't afford to miss the new show which opens at the popular Arcade playhouse this afternoon for the last three days of this week. One of the big features on the bill is the Carrs, in a singing, talking, and dancing specialty act that is strictly up-to-the-minute. Mrs. Carr is said to introduce some beautiful costumes along with their excellent work, but Master Clifford is the real scream in the act. He is just a tiny tot but is known as America's greatest child comedian. A better child performer was never seen at the Orpheum, and every child in the city should see him sing, talk and dance. Another pleasing feature is "Mary's Birthday," a comedy skit, presented by Bristol and Warner. It is full of good sparkling comedy, and with their special scenery they are always a hit. The Warwick's are offering an excellent turn, that is quite a novelty, and full of good, side-splitting comedy. May Spurling in character singing and dancing is very entertaining and will win much favor with her gaudy mannerism. The Orpheumscope has a new licensed film. Don't forget the five reels of high class motion pictures which the Orpheum is offering every Sunday for 10c, continuous from 1:30 to 10:30 p. m.

STEREOTICON LECTURE IN TRINITY PARISH HOUSE.
"The Contest of the Continent" will be the subject of a stereoticon lecture in Trinity Parish House this evening, beginning at 7:30.

Our own land—how we acquired it, why we acquired it and what we are doing to fulfill the purpose for which God placed it within our control—this is the subject to be considered. Seventy-nine slides will be shown by the aid of the large electric lantern. There will be no charge for admission, but a free will offering will be asked. The public is cordially invited.

AUTO CRASHED INTO SLED AND KILLED A BOY

Chicago, Jan. 25.—An automobile crashed into a loaded bobsled on a hill in the southern part of the city last night and Walter Clegg, 15 years old, was killed. Louis Batek, 16 years old, suffered broken legs and internal injuries. Patrick Dundon, 15, was pierced through the lungs with a splinter of wood, and both legs of Charles Holmes, 14, were broken.

Three other boys on the sled for the "last ride" for the night were bruised and cut, one seriously.

A BIRD IN A LIGHT HOUSE

For years, "The Donkey" 50, Haven, Mich., a civil war captain, as a light-house keeper, averted awful wrecks; but a queer fact is, he might have been a wreck himself. "Electric Bitters" had not prevented. "They cured me of kidney trouble and chills," he writes, "after I had taken other so-called cures for years, without benefit, and they also improved my sight. Now, at seventy, I am feeling fine. For dyspepsia, indigestion, all stomach, liver and kidney troubles, they're without equal. Try them. Only 50 cts at F. D. Hall.

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS QUIT AT ZANESVILLE

Suspension of High School Instructor Precipitates Strike of Students Who Demand Reinstatement.

Zanesville, Jan. 25.—More than 100 pupils in the Lash High school went on a students' strike yesterday afternoon because of the dismissal of Prof. H. B. Parsons, teacher of the commercial classes in the building. They were headed by Herman Wiles, a senior, chairman of a committee of seven organized by the pupils at the morning session for the purpose of waiting upon Superintendent W. C. Bowers and President Albert T. Baker of the board of education to lay their grievance before them.

All told 25 seniors were included in the list of those absent in the afternoon. Many pupils left after they had entered the school for their lessons it is said.

The committee also made a visit to the office of Albert T. Baker, president of the board of education at the Baker Bros. wholesale house, but he was out of the city.

Superintendent Bowers paid a hurried visit to Principal E. H. White and the names of every pupil away from the school were secured. Principal White said Wednesday afternoon, "I did not know anything about the trouble until I saw a committee stopping every pupil who came down the street. I investigated and ascertained the nature of the trouble. We of course, have not decided what action will be taken in the matter as the president of the board of education is out of the city."

The suspension of Professor Parsons was made by Superintendent W. C. Bowers Tuesday afternoon upon grounds of insubordination. He is alleged to have refused to obey orders issued by Principal White of the high school. The matter will be placed before the board of education and there will be a special meeting called by President Baker as soon as he returns home.

REPORT OF THE IMMIGRATION COMMISSIONER

Many Chinese Laborers Felt Authorities and Gain Admission to the United States.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Many Chinese laborers have flocked into the United States immigration authorities within the past year, gaining admission to the country in the guise of merchants, students, teachers, according to the annual report of Daniel J. Keefe, Commissioner General of Immigration. Mr. Keefe calls attention to the unsatisfactory condition of the so-called Chinese exclusion laws, and the necessity for extensive changes in the system under which it is sought to prevent the introduction of Chinese laborers into the country, and to make easy the coming and going of classes which the law does not intend to exclude.

The report shows that during the last fiscal year 1,030,300 aliens, of various nationalities, entered the country for temporary purposes only. Of these 151,574 came during the same period 518,215 aliens left the United States, of whom 222,549 were temporary departures. The net gain in population by immigration, therefore, was 512,085.

The Commissioner general suggests that there be applied to aliens coming to perform labor a physical standard similar to that required of recruits for the army.

It is also suggested that the law be made much more rigid with respect to induced immigration, and that the penal provisions be strengthened.

A phase of induced immigration which has been rapidly increasing consists of the practice of certain employers in the middle and far west to employ Mexican laborers. Thousands of these laborers are annually induced to come into the United States, says the report, not by direct means which can be made the basis of a prosecution, but by indirect means, such as the dissemination of false information to the effect that work can be secured by crossing the border and applying to labor agencies located on the American side who are engaged in securing laborers for the railroad companies, mine operators and others, the cost of their procurements being deducted from the first wages earned by the cheap class of unskilled laborers. Every possible effort has been exerted to control this situation, but with only fair success.

It is shown that during the year 1910 Japanese were admitted to the mainland and 2,159 to Hawaii. Compared with the preceding year there was an increase of 65 per cent for the mainland and 44 per cent for Hawaii. Regarding Japanese of the laboring classes to whom the most interest attaches, only 72 were admitted to the mainland, and 3,740 to Hawaii, while 3,344 departed from the mainland and 1,581 from Hawaii.

The methods adopted by Chinese to evade the exclusion laws are so ingenious and complicated as to beggar description. They extend all the way from crossing the land boundaries in sealed freight cars or being packed away in the holds of vessels, and landing under cover of darkness.

Two favorite devices for introducing young coolies consists of declaring that the applicant is the minor son of a Chinese citizen, or is the son born abroad of a Chinaman in this country, and therefore a citizen; and although the officers may be morally certain these claims are false, it is difficult to disprove them. Of "minor sons" 423 entered during the year and of "naturalized" 1,585. Regarding those who have entered on claims of citizenship, it is shown that the average for the past three years has been 1,422 per year. Using these figures as a basis, it is calculated that unless the law is strengthened in some manner, or present conditions materially change, the next decade will witness the entry to the United States of citizenship claims alone, of over 56,000 Chinese.

LEADER HANISH KNOCKED DOWN IN STREET BATTLE

Chicago, Jan. 25.—A fist fight between newspaper photographers and followers of the Mazdaznan cult followed a decision by Judge Merritt W. Plachy in the juvenile court that neither the Rev. Dr. Ottoman, Zar Adust Hanish nor Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsay is a proper custodian for 12-year-old William Lindsay, who is heir to a $500,000 fortune in Philadelphia.

In the encounter Hanish was knocked down, his eye blackened and his clothing torn. Dr. Charles Thompson, a follower of Hanish, was beaten, four other men and two women were either knocked or pushed down and 50 persons were engaged in the combat outside the court door.

The fistfight came when followers of Hanish formed a laze in the street which he might pass from the court to his automobile, excluding others from that part of the sidewalk. A photographer tried to snap the leader of the cult and Dr. Thompson and his friends smashed the camera.

Friends of the newspapermen attacked the cult followers. Police patrolmen officers and deputies quelled the disturbance and hurried Hanish and his friends back into the courtroom, from which they departed later.

Judge Plachy directed that when the Lindsay boy is found by the court officials he shall be given into the care of his uncle and aunt, Charles E. Lindsay and his wife.

William Lindsay, who is believed to have possession of her son, was held in contempt of court and an attachment was issued for her. The defense in 30 days may make an appeal from the order.

It was expected that the followers of Hanish would present evidence concerning the Mazdaznan Temple, which was criticized as being an unfit place in which to house the Lindsay boy. Counsel for Hanish declined to call any witnesses, declaring that the Mazdaznan cult was not on trial.

The search for the boy who was taken from the cult temple by court officials and then returned to his mother in spite of a promise to take him into court will be continued.

ITCHING HUMORS

THERE IS NOW A WAY TO ESCAPE THESE SKIN TORMENTS

People sometimes say, "Well, that new remedy of yours, Saxon Salve, has cured me of eczema, but I don't know if it will help me for I have had eczema a long time." The fact is Saxon Salve was designed as much for chronic skin troubles as for acute cases, and it is equally effective, though usually the chronic cases are more stubborn.

"Numbers" of cases right around here could be classed showing that Saxon Salve is exactly the remarkable soothing and curative remedy for skin diseases that we claim.

The itching is stopped in a few moments after the first application and improvement is seen in a few days.

All humors and disorders of the skin, whether scaly, crusted or in very dry stages, usually yield to Saxon Salve promptly. If it does not in your case, your money is returned. F. D. Hall, druggist, Newark, O.

Before Allowing an Operation

Please Read These Two Letters.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before. Then after all that suffering Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored her health.

HERE IS HER OWN STATEMENT.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief, and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. To-day I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise every woman who is afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. Orville Rock, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Mich.

"THERE NEVER WAS A WORSE CASE." Rockport, Ind.—"There never was a worse case of women's ills than mine, and I cannot begin to tell you what I suffered. For over two years I was not able to do anything. I was in bed for a month and the doctor said nothing but an operation would cure me. My father suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; so I purchased it and I improved wonderfully, so I am able to travel, ride horseback, take long rides and never feel any ill effects from it. I can only ask other suffering women to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation."—Mrs. MARGARET MEREDITH, R. F. D. No. 3, Rockport, Ind.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one who has taken it does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

MEASURES MUST BE INSPECTED BY THE SEALER

John Zimmerman, sealer of weights and measures, is preparing for the semi-annual inspection and sealing of all weights and measures used in this city. The statute provides that this must be done at least once a year while the city ordinance provides that the inspection shall be made every six months.

The dealers using measures must bring them to the sealer for comparison with the standards and have the seal affixed. The sealer will issue a notice in a few days directing all dealers to bring in their measures.

Engineers and Their Engines.

The policy of divorcing engineers from particular and pet locomotives is becoming of general application by railroad managements throughout the country and it is expected, will soon have become universal. To the young men of the craft who began their careers under the new order of things it is without significance, but to the veterans who so often were "married" to the engines which they started with, and in many instances, started with for years together, often times sacrificing a run rather than take out a strange machine, it means much, for divers reasons, sentimental and otherwise.

This Will Stop Your Cough in a Hurry

Save $2 by Making This Cough Syrup at Home.

This recipe makes a pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. A few doses usually cure the most obstinate cough, even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with a pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite, and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, croup, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung troubles.

The effect of pinex on the membrane is well known. Pinex is the most valuable white pine extract, and is rich in Vitamin A, and the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe has attained great popularity throughout the United States and Canada. It has often been imitated, though never successfully.

A quantity of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

SHOE MACHINERY TRUST PROMISES TO BE VERY GOOD

Washington, Jan. 23.—In an effort to stave off further prosecution by the Department of Justice of the U. S. United Machinery Company has made overtures to Attorney-General Wickham to join the band of "good trusts" of which the Grocers' Trust is the charter member.

The Department of Justice has filed two suits against the Shoe Machinery Trust, one a civil cause and the other a criminal action. The answers to the civil action have just been filed, but the criminal prosecution of the officers of the trust is well under way. The officers were indicted and pleaded not guilty. They took the next step which was open to them, by entering a demurrer to the indictment.

At the time the grand jury in Boston returned the indictment against the trust officials all came out in statements, declaring that they were innocent, and that they would fight the government's action to a finish.

When the civil action was filed no comment was made by the trust other than to file its answer in court.

In view of these actions by the trust officials the department of justice looks upon the overtures made to-day as a confession of guilt. However no decision will be reached by the attorney general in the matter for some time. In any event he will not agree to a dismissal of the criminal action.

The best the trust can hope to get is a voluntary dissolution in lieu of civil action to the same end. In the event of a voluntary dissolution a decree to that effect will be filed in the court. This will give the government a permanent injunction against the trust.

Assistant to the Attorney-General, James Fowler will represent the government in the voluntary dissolution conferences, and Charles Choate the Shoe Machinery Company. Mr. Choate has mapped out a plan of reorganization. This he will submit to Mr. Fowler some time next week.

FEDERAL INCORPORATION.

New York, Jan. 23.—George W. Wickham, attorney general of the United States, in an article on the "Enforcement of the Anti-trust Law" in the February Century magazine, published today suggests federal incorporation as the remedy for the uncertainty arising from the interpretation of the Sherman law. He says the views he sets forth are embodied substantially in President Taft's message to Congress in January, 1910.

Discontent with the Sherman law, he declares, is confined mainly to the interests in trust. They have been prosecuted by the Department of Justice and smaller manufacturers, who wish to make trade agreements or consolidations for the purpose of keeping up prices. There is a third class of business men, honest in purpose, he says, who are confronted by a genuine uncertainty. They are the owners of two or more companies engaged in the same lines of business who desire to consolidate, and the investors invited to contribute to the consolidation.

"If the object of that consolidation," he says, "is not the mere construction of an existing competition, but the carrying on of the business under improved conditions, with economies of production and management, the combinations cannot be said to be illegal. Nevertheless, there is an uncertainty in ascertaining the actual purpose. At the outset the purpose is locked in the breasts of the participants in the combination."

"Those who are invited into such an enterprise, particularly at an early stage feel the uncertainties attendant upon it, and with reason demand an authoritative method of determining at least whether the original organization is a lawful one."

"In my opinion," he continues, "the only effective way to eliminate all genuine uncertainty is through a federal incorporation act containing provisions adequate to meet the situation."

HENRIETTA CROSMAN IN "THE REAL THING."

One of the notable attractions to visit this city this season will be Henrietta Crosmen in her latest New York comedy success, "The Real Thing," which has recently closed a very successful season at the Maxine Elliott theatre.

Miss Crosmen plays a "glow" and the critics have been unanimous in saying it is the best comedy role she has ever played in years. Miss Crosmen will be supported by the same company that she had during the New York engagement. "The Real Thing" will be the attraction at the Auditorium, Friday evening.

DRY PETITION WAS WITHDRAWN

Zanesville, Jan. 23.—The petition of certain residents in the Greenwood cemetery vicinity, who desired that the petitioners' GYPSY PILE OINTMENT, or SUPPOSITORIES, be withdrawn from the market, was withdrawn.

It was stated that the law requires the district affected to contain at least 300 voters, while only 24 live in the district outlined in the petition.

It is understood that another petition will soon be submitted to Mayor Schofield for the same purpose. No election is necessary under the Jones law, as the mayor grants the petition, provided he decides at the hearing that the signers are bona fide voters and constitute a majority in the district.

COAL OIL CAUSED STOVE EXPLOSION

Zanesville, Jan. 23.—Just after Mrs. Mary A. Cooper, aged 75, of Willis Creek, poured coal oil into an air-light stove at noon Wednesday to rekindle the fire, the stove exploded and the aged woman was hurled across the room against a bed. She received serious injuries.

After pouring in the oil she closed the door tight. The accumulating gas let go with a loud report. Mrs. Cooper was alone in the house at the time. The explosion was heard in a store across the street and several men rushed to her assistance. She was injured about the back by striking the bed.

Mrs. Cooper was stricken with paralysis a few weeks ago, and was scarcely able to walk at all. It is feared the additional injuries and shock will prove fatal.

MRS. MORRISON BURNED WHEN GAS EXPLODES

Mrs. Clara Morrison of 68 Mound court, was painfully burned about the face and arms yesterday by an explosion of gas in the kitchen at her home. The fact that she was wearing glasses probably saved her eyesight, as her cheeks and forehead were almost blistered by the intense heat of the exploding gas.

Mrs. Morrison attempted to light the gas in the oven of the range. Supposing that the gas was burning properly, she prepared articles to be baked. When she opened the oven door to place the articles on the grating, the gas which filled the space was ignited from the burners on top of the stove and the explosion followed.

A great sheet of flame enveloped the woman's head and shoulders. Her hair was ignited and her eyebrows burned off, while her face and arms were seared by the burning gas. She succeeded in extinguishing the burning hair before she was seriously burned.

She suffered great pain from the burns, but it is believed that the skin was not burned deep enough to leave any scars.

CANNOT MOVE MORSE TO PRIVATE HOSPITAL

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 25.—Charles W. Morse is still in the post hospital at Ft. McPherson, too ill to be moved. Ever since President Taft commuted his sentence last week, the ex-banker pleaded with his physician, Dr. A. L. Fowler, to have him removed to a private hospital, but without success.

"While Mr. Morse has been mentally uplifted by the President's action," said Dr. Fowler, "his physical condition is such that it would be dangerous to move him at this time."

Dr. Fowler said that there was no hope for Morse's ultimate recovery, and that whatever improvement had occurred had been due to the mental stimulus provided by the commutation of his sentence.

TORCH APPLIED FOR THIRD TIME BY INCENDIARY

Coshocton, Jan. 25.—State fire marshals are investigating the third incendiary fire of Roscoe, which followed the finding of several anonymous notes in which threats were made to burn property as a result of the school fight at that place. They secured samples of handwriting, one from the Denny family, to whose home bloodhounds yesterday followed the trail from the Lyons warehouse, which was destroyed by fire Tuesday night.

Further apprehension was manifested yesterday when M. T. Bible found a note on his doorstep which read: "We intend to burn your property, and if we can't do that we will dynamite the place." There was no attempt to disguise the handwriting, which may furnish a clue. This is the fifth note of this kind which has been found in Roscoe.

The fire Tuesday night consumed a warehouse belonging to Prof. J. E. Lyons, superintendent of schools, worth $400. The blaze was kindled in all corners with hay, a part of which was found near by. Lancaster bloodhounds followed the trail to the home of Andrew Denny, although public opinion scouted the idea of his connection with the fire. Deputy Fire Marshal W. A. Fishinger and an assistant have secured the measurements of the footprints found in the snow and are securing samples of handwriting and collecting other evidence. An arrest is expected today.

This is the third incendiary fire at Roscoe since Jan. 1, when the public school building was destroyed by an incendiary following agitation over the employment of a teacher. Roscoe people have received threats to burn their property and a state of terror has existed since that time.

FEAR TO SLEEP; USE PLANOS; STAY AWAKE

Roscoe, O., Jan. 25.—Roscoe residents, in a state of terror from the many threatening notes and the recent incendiary fires, are afraid to close their eyes at night for fear the firebug will come. Practically every family "staid up" last night, following the Lyons fire. They invoked the aid of pianos, organs and graphophones as sleep-dispellers, and the sound of these instruments could be heard all night. When daylight came Roscoe retired to its slumbers.

DEWEY SMITH HAS FRACTURE OF SKULL BONE

Dewey Smith, age 15, the lad who was struck by a taxicab while coasting on Hudson avenue Wednesday morning, sustained a fracture of the skull in the accident, according to a statement made Thursday. A more thorough examination made later, revealed the fracture just above the left temple.

It is not regarded as serious. It is believed that there was no injury to the brain and it is thought that an operation will not be necessary as there is no indication that there is any pressure against the brain tissues.

The boy was resting comfortably Thursday and barring complications, he will recover in a short time.

BACK TO THE FARM

A Discussion of Farming's Present Drawbacks and Its Future Prospects.

The following are extracts from an article by Harvey W. Wiley, chief chemist of the United States department of Agriculture in the February Century.

Farming requires the greatest industry, the keenest intellect and the best training of all the professions. A day's skilled labor on the farm at the present time produces twice as much food as it did 50 years ago. Paying cash for labor is a burden to the farmer which is well-nigh intolerable; and yet if he does his own work, he must either have a very small farm or a very large family of boys and girls, who, moreover, are likely to leave him as they approach their majority.

What, then, are we to do to stop the flowing of the best blood of the farm to the city? The answer, it seems to me, is a simple one: Make the farm a more productive place than the city, and its prospects for a career more certain.

When people come back from the city to the farm, as I picture the farm in the future, it will not be to lead a life of dreary labor, but rather to engage in an occupation which will command intelligence and the best business capacity.

When the city comes back to the country, it will come with culture, with intelligence and with knowledge. The science and art of agriculture, drafting into its service, as it is doing at the present time, every other science, will so increase productivity that no Malthus nor Sir William Crookes will ever arise again and prophesy starvation for humanity.

fals, but beyond his visit to the White House and the President's return visit nothing is known officially of the first visit of royalty to Washington in many years.

WALL STREET HAS VISIT FROM THE ROYAL PARTY

New York, Jan. 25.—Wall street actually stopped business for fully ten minutes to render homage to the royal party.

Three members of the reigning house of England—the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia—visited the Wall street district. Where money kings come and go daily without ado, their royal highnesses found the way choked with admiring cheering throngs.

Ambassador Reid acting as host and guide, took the party in automobiles down the Wall street canyon, and they were met at the stock exchange by President R. H. Thomas. News of the visit had preceded their arrival, and a crowd of persons gathered to greet the visitors.

It is quite possible to get the grip without joining a secret society.

When they entered the exchange the interest was so general that business was actually stopped for more than ten minutes. After being shown the operations of the floor, the visitors departed.

From the exchange the visitors were whirled up town for a visit to the Mills Hotel to see the home of hundreds of people of small means, created by the late D. O. Mills, father-in-law of Ambassador Reid.

A luncheon at the Fifth-avenue home of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., was the chief feature of the afternoon, and last night the party was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills at a dinner and musicale. Sixty persons attended the dinner, and more than 200 more came later for the musicale.

The Duke will leave for Washington this afternoon, and during his absence the Duchess and Princess will attend the opera here.

The walks of the Duke unattended through the city's thoroughfares have become a feature of the visit of the royal party here. Daily the uncle of King George of England steps briskly from the home of Ambassador Reid and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid and goes for a jaunt along Fifth avenue and in Central Park.

Hundreds of people who pass him fail to recognize the royal visitor, and he enjoys himself keenly looking over the city.
